The first footfalls of the second century of higher education on the Eastern Kentucky University campus were the variegated ideas and aspirations of the persons who populated this heterogeneous reflection of the larger society. The campus was both the insulator and breeding ground for the development of these concepts, as through solitude and group interaction each pursued the achievement of one of man's cardinal aims — the improvement of life.

Diversity of interest punctuated the life of the Eastern student. Communication with the campus surroundings created the awareness that learning was to be found through avenues other than the traditional classroom, laboratory and textbook. Relationships between the components of the University Community developed a harmony in academic and social learning. The freedom to pursue one's own lifestyle, while drawing from a century-long campus heritage, maintained in both the individual and the institution a special versatility and dynamism.

From the mystic union of the fruits of man's labor and the beauty of nature grew the solidarity of the University campus to nurture and insulate the learning experience. It was a blend of stately, old trees and young, vibrant flowers against the materialistic backdrop of steel, concrete and brick . . .

... That merged to create a thriving and workable world for the Eastern student; an environment in which the interfacing of creative attitudes and the youthful spirit of its citizens was accomplished in this colossus that is the modern multi-versity.

Yet it was here we walked when ferns were springing,
And through the mossy bank shot bud and blade—
Here found in summer, when the birds were singing,
A green and pleasant shade.

—Robert Seymour Bridges

It was, then, the blend of academe', people, and the magic of eternal nature that made the first year of Century II another in the sequence of rebirths that come each year to Eastern, keeping her alive, vibrant and responsive. But, in the final analysis, it was the people, for . . .

"The people is a polychrome,
a spectrum and a prism
held in a moving monolith,
a console organ of changing themes,
a clavilux of color poems."

—Carl Sandburg

College Experiences Stimulates Individualism

Four years of college life, considered by many to be the most important part of a persons life, presented students with various new experiences. With a sense of independence not present before college, each individual shaped his own future. Whether gathering with friends outside the student center or capturing nature's beauty in the campus amphitheater, each day furnished a record 12,571 Eastern students the opportunity to express their inner feelings.

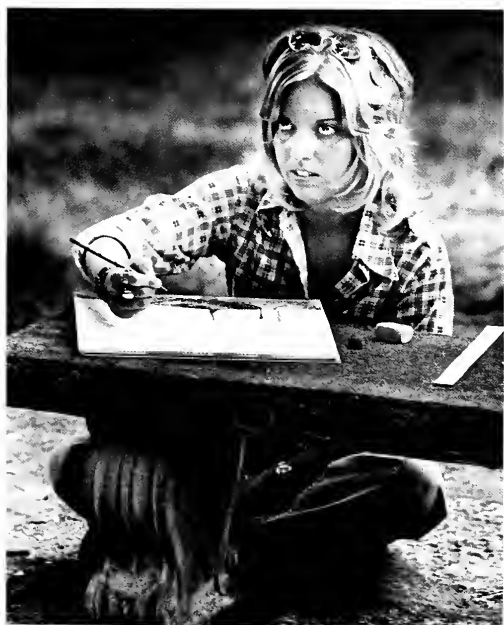

Responsibilities accompanied students throughout their four years of higher education. Speculation, deliberation, and application were the results of long hours of labor. Yet college life was more than just work. Acquiring new friends, partying on Thursday nights, and sharing experiences with dormmates were also vital parts of a persons learning process.

Roommates Assist With Moving In

After driving long hours with a carload of clothes, books, and other necessities they just couldn't leave behind, the students arrived to once again fill the dormitory rooms. The long waiting periods to obtain their room assignments, keys, and to find out who their roommates were, added to the frustrations of the day. Then came the job of unloading all those "valuable possessions" they had acquired over the years. With the aid of roommates and parents they finally got the rooms cleaned and things put in place. Each had ideas as to how the room could best be made more livable. Thus, moving in continued over the months they were students at Eastern.

Summer Sun Draws Students Outdoors

With classes not starting until Thursday, students found themselves with ample free time to spend leisurely on campus. As the university made last minute preparations for the upcoming semester, students adjusted themselves to college life. Working together, bewildered students sought their way across an unfamiliar campus.

The warm, late summer days drew students outdoors before classes and studies began to consume much of their time. Many walked to downtown Richmond to survey the stores and recreation facilities located there. Less ambitious ones preferred to laze around campus, soaking up the sunshine.

Wild Rush Begins The Fall Semester

Fall registration began with the usual rush to the Jones Building to pick up packets. The lines were long and the wait frustrating, but it was nonetheless a necessary step in the process of obtaining those needed classes. Upon entering Alumni Coliseum for the actual registration, the unending lines still persisted, with students attempting to get their advisors' signatures and awaiting their turn to request a certain class in hopes that it would not yet be closed. Although the process was time consuming, more than 12,500 students survived the ordeal and awaited the beginning of classes.

Right: Centrally located between the student center and Keen Johnson building, the University Store provides students with the many needs of college life.

University Store Fulfills Class Preparations

The University Store again provided the necessities to prepare for the upcoming semester. The store offered a wide variety of supplies including textbooks, study guides, reference books, art supplies, and laboratory and physical education equipment.

The sales clerks demonstrated their eagerness to assist new students in locating their textbooks by wearing tee shirts reading "I Can Help." The combination of added cash registers and courteous personnel made the service more efficient.

Practical Experiences Enliven Learning

Classes began with students getting involved into the practical aspects of their major area of study. Students found that it was easier to learn by doing than through the lecture method of teaching. From the classroom and textbooks came theories with which the student could apply in life situations. However, many hours were spent by them in the laboratories and practice centers around campus.

Students Participate In Class Exercises

Students found lectures to be informative. In their classes they formulated many ideas through discussion and practice with their peers. They were able to later on extend these ideas to applicable field experiences. From practicum to organizing recreational programs in the Richmond Community, the students began utilizing their knowledge.

Students Covet Free Time

Coveted by every University student, free time was sought and enjoyed by all. Whether the student had money to spend or just time to waste, EKV provided a variety of activities to release the building up of tensions accompanying college life. Located in the Powell Building, a recreation center provided facilities such as a bowling alley, pool tables, foosball, and air hockey. If an outdoor environment better suited the personality, relaxation was found in the ravine or on the tennis court during the warmer months. On weekends students spent free time viewing campus movies, playing racquet ball at the Begley Building, and taking advantage of the increased number of open houses. Free time was a needed facet of the college student. How it was spent depended on each individual's philosophy. Whether it was just rapping with friends, viewing a sport event, or participating in a recreational activity, Eastern provided facilities adaptable to each personality.

Top: Proving their skillful ability, Mariko Kanamori and Mani Wong-somboon challenge Linda Davis and Sithi Assanivat to fast moving game of foosball. Above: The trees in the ravine provide a convenient place for students to test their tree climbing abilities.

Rising Food Costs Strain Student Budgets

With the rising food costs eating became a difficult necessity in which the student had to search for the best buys. The campus grill and cafeteria, centrally located in the Powell Building, maintained last year's prices which contributed to their increased popularity. Lunch specials aided those students on tight budgets and yet provided them with nourishing meals. Many students preferred to go off campus in search of a variety of different foods. From grabbing a quick hamburger to hours of enjoying a large meal, one could find satisfaction at one of the many restaurants in and around Richmond. Others preferred to run to the grocery and pick up canned goods and the like. Such things as pre-cooked dinners and cans of tuna and soup were among the more popular items found in the students' shopping cart. Once back to their quarters, students could prepare these foods rather quickly as they maintained a busy college schedule.

Transportation Adds To Student Lifestyles

Transportation needs varied in each of the students' lifestyles as the year progressed. Many found that rising prices of gasoline and oil made operating a car too expensive while living on a student budget. Others found the need outweighed the cost as automobile service centers continued to be filled with students gassing up for those weekend trips to visit parents and friends. However, the budget conscious student found less expensive methods of getting around the campus and Richmond communities. Walking, of course, was everyone's basic method. The central location of Eastern among the business districts of Richmond made the walks bearable. Other means such as bicycles, motorcycles, and golf carts were found dotting the campus surroundings.

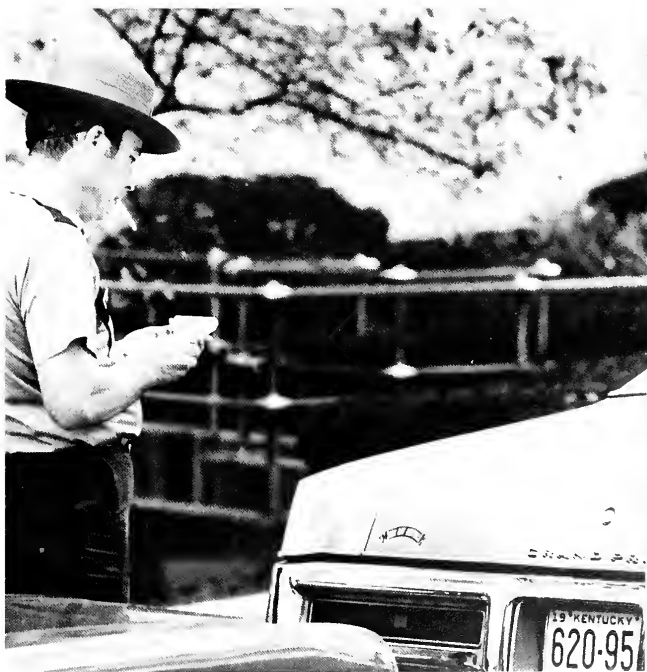

The campus parking facilities were again crowded. In contrast to rising fuel prices an increased number of student owned automobiles decreased the number of parking spaces available. Illegal parking citations were issued to those who chose to park out of zone. Eastern's security reinforced parking regulations for campus safety.

Dorm Life Stimulates Close Friendships

Serving as a home for many Eastern coeds, dormitories provided living quarters and friendships to the students who lived within their boundaries. The early facial washes in the bathrooms, social gatherings on special occasions, and late-night studying all became a special part of the lives they touched. Noisy halls made studying that much more hectic, yet the friendships which developed had numerous far-reaching results. Dormitory living provided students with a chance to share experiences, get along with other people, and dream of the future to come.

Men Benefit From Residential Programs

Living closely with men from across the nation, life in one of Eastern's eight men's dorms proved to be both a trying as well as rewarding experience. Floor residents combined their physical talents and entered teams in intramural competition. House councils provided special programs such as Commonwealth's movie presentations and Palmer's karate demonstration. All dorms conducted table tennis and rook tournaments to initiate resident participation. Other various activities including several interdorm efforts rounded out a busy schedule.

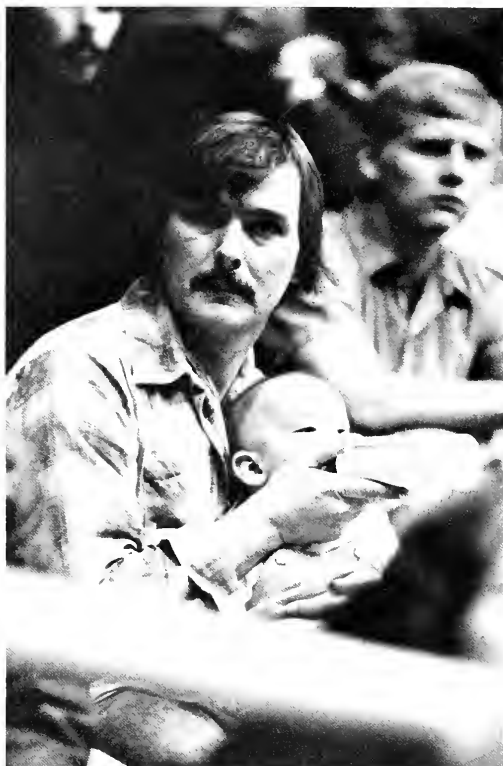

Inconvenience was also a result of the close confinement. Card parties and loud music sometimes hampered study efforts while firecracker attacks could result in irregular sleeping habits. Regardless of the disadvantages, dorm life proved to be an educational experience.

Brockton Facilitates Married Student Life

Brockton provided a variety of living facilities for married students. Apartments, trailers, and houses were available to eligible couples on a reasonable basis. Married student housing offered an environment conducive to study while at the same time serving as many newlyweds' first home. Couples experienced a modified dorm life by collectively playing cards, by rapping with friends, and by participating in group recreational activities. The concept of the nuclear family became predominant with the interaction of the entire Brockton community. As a result, current lifestyles were broken away from the traditional extended family idea of generational ties by developing independent marital relationships.

Off Campus Living Appeals To Students

Taking advantage of university policy, some students chose to live off-campus. Local apartment complexes as well as trailer courts were popular choices. These living quarters eliminated some of the disadvantages of dorm life.

However, disadvantages accompanied students in homes off campus. Besides rent payments, monthly light and gas bills had to be taken care of. Finding transportation to classes was an added responsibility.

Commuters Embark On Daily Journey

Many students in surrounding counties chose to spend early morning and late afternoon hours traveling to and from the University. The money saved from dorm fees was put toward fuel expenses and wear and tear of their transportation vehicles. Due to the numerous obstacles encountered along the way, extra time often had to be considered when departing for the day's classes. Heavy traffic and delays led to frustration, causing a strain on the remaining part of the daily activities.

Fraternity Housing Reaches New Plateaus

Marking the second year fraternity houses were in operation, new ideas and changes opened avenues for improvement. Although the houses were off campus, they were still under supervision of the University. The University increased the allowance of the number of fraternity members which could live in the houses from six to eight.

The fraternity housing gave members the chance to experience an entirely different form of living. Moving from the dormitory to the house involved the acquiring of different study habits and sleeping times. The houses served as the hub of activities for the six fraternities which had them. Mixers with sororities, rush parties, and simply cooking a meal or relaxing in front of a television set added to the life in these houses. As the utilization of these facilities were increased, the house was initiated as an integral part of fraternal living at Eastern.

Downtown Provides Thursday Night Entertainment

Weekend activities began on Thursday evenings as Eastern students flooded Richmond's "night" spots for a couple hours of dancing and refreshments. Friday morning tests failed to silence the sounds of partying as local bistros provided live entertainment. Action downtown typically started around 9:30 and lasted until midnight at which time private parties were organized. Off-campus parties gave students the opportunity to socialize until the wee hours of the morning. Weariness often accompanied those students attending first period classes the next morning. A long weekend of partying begins with a smile, a wave, and a pat on the back.

Nostalgic Dancing Highlights Student Events

The weeks were filled with varied interests of entertainment and one of the most growing was an interest in dancing. From the Thursday night downtown excursions to social events sponsored by campus organizations, many enjoyed this fun loving art. As new dances appeared on the scene it was no time till they hit the student entertainment spots. Filled with laughter and loud music these places were the sight of many hours of enjoyment. The sponsoring of a Sadie Hawkins Day dance during the fall semester found the feminine role playing a strong part in the days events. In the spring, the fifties came to life as greased hair and pony tails danced to the music of the Phi Mu Alpha honorary rock and roll group. Varied as the dances were the students enjoyed the socializing that came with these activities.

Suitcasing Vacates Campus Community

The grand exodus of Eastern students on Friday afternoons gave the appearance of a suitcase campus. Preferring home to the dorm life, students left to see friends, to work, and to enjoy home-cooked meals. Eastern's relative closeness to major cities and increased school holidays gave rise to weekend visits away from the campus area. Escaping the studious atmosphere, they found refuge in modern shopping centers, at spectator sporting events, and at concerts of popular performing artists. The reality of college life brought refreshed travelers back Sunday night ready to begin a week of concentrated study.

Richmond Abounds With Friendly People

Surrounding the Eastern campus, the community of Richmond was much influenced by University activities. The seat of Madison County, Richmond offered entertainment, business establishments, shopping facilities, and churches at which to worship.

The most important facet of this rural community was its people. The friendly and courteous 16,900 residents assisted students at every possible moment. Through church organizations citizens opened their doors many times cooking dinners for their campus friends. Presenting advantages not available in large cities, Richmond's appeal attracted many to Eastern Kentucky University.

The Strip Offers a Multitude of Emporia

The most rapidly expanding area in Richmond, the "Strip" provided an extremely wide variety of stores, restaurants, and entertainment establishments. Located on the Eastern By-Pass, this business district was within easy walking distance of the campus. Shopping centers offered a multitude of enterprises, including an ice cream parlor, drug stores, department stores, and novelty shops.

Privately-owned and chain restaurants lined both sides of the By-Pass. Those desiring a meal were able to choose among the numerous hamburger, chicken, and pizza establishments. Recreational facilities of the "Strip" attracted many students and town residents. Two new modern cinemas displayed the latest screen hits. By continually expanding throughout the year, the "Strip" offered even more advantages to Eastern and the city of Richmond.

Students Capitalize On Solitary Locations

Despite the turbulent life ever present in the college community, there still remained a very integral part of the university experience to which students applied themselves during calmer and more serious parts of the day — STUDYING.

The campus provided several escapist spots which proved ideal for soaking up material to be covered by Thursday's biology test or solving problems for trig class. The ravine, a traditional outdoor studying place, offered nature's aesthetic surroundings. Indoors, students were able to "get away from it all" at a corner desk in the library or in the comfortable decor of one of the Powell Building's spacious lounges. Whether indoors or out a student could always find his own quiet niche in which to absorb knowledge.

Students Learn Self-Defense Methods

A new course was initiated to instruct students in self-defense. Primarily coordinated to teach women how to protect themselves from muggers, and other attackers, it was met by a tremendous response. The purpose was to teach women protection techniques not for attacking. The class began with exercises to strengthen back and leg muscles. Development in this area readied the individual for initial interaction. The main criteria was to keep alert and not let the attacker catch one off guard. The encouragement of developing these useful skills added to the learning knowledge of the Eastern student.

Autumn Hues Color Campus Scenery

Autumn hues colored Eastern's campus in golds, browns, reds, and burnt oranges. October's bright-blue weather painted the leaves on the trees while November's gales brought them swirling to the ground. Warning of the cold winter to come, fall's chilling temperatures were perfect for a wiener roast with a roaring fire, allowing one final fling before settling down to the confining months ahead.

Band Day Salutes Kentucky Bicentennial

A double attraction was in store in the early autumn days of September as Eastern hosted its annual band day and a home Colonels football game. More than 40 high school bands from around the state, led by ECU's Model Laboratory School Band, paraded from the campus through downtown Richmond. Full of enthusiasm and high spirits the bands passed in the review of students, parents, and local townspeople. Spirits were high as the warm sunshine added style to the day's festivities. Numbering about 4,500 the high school musicians performed at the halftime show in a musical salute to Kentucky's Bicentennial Celebration. The program included folk tunes associated with the heritage of Kentucky and the state song of "My Old Kentucky Home", focusing on the greatness of the state. The day was filled with more sunshine as Eastern whipped East Tennessee State 21-20.

Campus Converts To Storybook Fantasyland

Excitement prevailed on the magical campus kingdom as Eastern prepared for Homecoming '74. Weeks of planning and diligent work were required by the subjects as the Richmond community readied for this festive weekend. Working with the Homecoming theme "A Storybook Victory," the fair maiden residents excelled in promoting spirit as Telford Hall captured first place in castle decoration competition. Loyal subjects who had graduated returned to Eastern as the classes of 1964 and 1969 held class reunions. On Friday night, queen aspirants were presented at the gala Homecoming Dance, which featured Bobby Lance and the Celtics. Subjects of various organizations constructed magical floats fantasizing such storybook characters as "Winnie-the-Pooh" and "Jack-and-the-Beanstalk," for Saturday morning's parade.

On Hanger Field the battle of OVC football intensified the excitement of this Homecoming Day. Eastern, Murray, and Western were tied in the quest for the OVC crown. Tension mounted as 18,300 subjects engulfed in homecoming spirit, awaited the showdown with Murray State.

Bottom: Long hours of hard labor and festive merrymaking among the Greek subjects results in the recreation of the storybook fantasy "Jack-and-the-Beanstalk."

Knightly Combat Gains Regal OVC Victory

The Homecoming Day began beautifully as the kingdom was bathed in warm morning sunshine. Court and guest musicians, magical floats, jesters, and attractive princesses tickled the fancies of young and old while they reviewed the storybook parade.

With the Colonels dominating the combat and conquering 270 yards on the battlefield, Eastern captured its first Homecoming victory since 1970. This win marched Eastern closer to its ultimate goal, the coveted OVC crown which had not been worn by the Colonels since 1968.

Excitement did not end after the conquest as the Center Board presented a spectacular Homecoming Concert. Doc Severinson and His Now Generation Brass featuring Today's Children enchanted the concert crowd.

Loyal Subjects Crown Their Queen

Prior to the weekend of the Storybook Victory celebration, the loyal subjects cast their ballots for the fifteen fairest damsels in the land. The final selection of the queen was made by a royal committee. As the day's festivities mounted, they gathered in Hanger Stadium to crown their Queen Sherry Moore.

Sherry, was a twenty-two year old senior nursing student from Portsmouth, Ohio. Sponsored by the Association of the United States Army, she held the title of "Queen Athena," chosen annually by Eastern's military organization and advanced cadets at their military ball. Sherry also served as Commander of the ROTC Sponsor Corp, as president of Pikettes, and as a member of the Kentucky Student Nursing Association.

EKU Players Present Shakespearian Comedy

The third week of October marked the first of the ECU Players' theatrical productions for the year. Performed in Gifford Theatre, "Twelfth Night" was directed by Drama Department chairman, Dr. Richard Benson. The Shakespearian comedy, dealing with a young girl's quest for information about her brother, required a large cast. Student and faculty actors rehearsed eight weeks for the four nightly performances. Designed by Jean Drusedow, the colorful costumes were fashioned by Drama 100 students. This emotional play motivated attendance to the remainder of the Players' successful productions.

Special Effects Add Touch of Originality

Capitalizing on the versatility of the Clarence H. Gifford theatre, "Blithe Spirit" was the first play to be performed in Theatre-in-the-round. Directed by Dr. Bob Sporre, the seven member cast effectively portrayed the characters of Noel Coward's improbable farce. The story involved a novelist, who when writing about spiritualism, accidentally brings back his first wife during a practice séance. Special effects such as levitating furniture and unexpected explosions of smoke added a spark of originality to the powerful comedy.

Alumni Coliseum Rocks With Rare Earth

Making concert performances of popular groups and soloists available to students throughout the year, University Center Board began with Rare Earth, September 4. The audience was absorbed in music from each of the rock group's four gold albums, Ecology, Get Ready, One World, and Rare Earth in Concert. Agreeing that music is a carrier of feeling, all six members admitted to joining the group for the opportunity to better express themselves. The Alumni Coliseum abounded with evidence of musical talent and expression as Ray Monette and Mike Urson exhibited their ability in playing guitars. Pete Hoorelbeke delighted the audience with a drum solo and vocal performances. Ed Guzman's concentration on the congas added to the group's overall sound. Mark Olson's playing on the keyboard and organ and Gil Bridges' versatility in switching from flute to saxophone brought variety to Rare Earth's style.

Murray And Davis Charm Student Audience

October 3, 1974 was the date of a packed Alumni Coliseum. Adorned in a green velvet and rhinestoned pantsuit, Anne Murray captivated the crowd with her country charm. Appealing to the female members in the audience, Mac Davis had them actually believing in music with songs such as "She's a Hell of a Woman" and "Whoever Finds This, I Love You." Ms. Murray received a standing ovation after holding the concert attendees spellbound with her popular hits of "Snowbird," "Danny's Song," and "Love Song." The addition of Mr. Davis' "poor boy" musical techniques to the last part of the show encouraged audience participation. The humor and musical ability of such performers as Davis and Murray provided a relaxed evening of entertainment sponsored by Eastern's Center Board.

Kristofferson Highlights Center Board Activities

Eastern students once again benefited from the efforts of the University Center Board in February when Kris Kristofferson and his wife Rita Coolidge performed before a substantial crowd in the Alumni Coliseum. Both Kris and Rita made an all-out conscientious effort to deliver a solid presentation of musical ability.

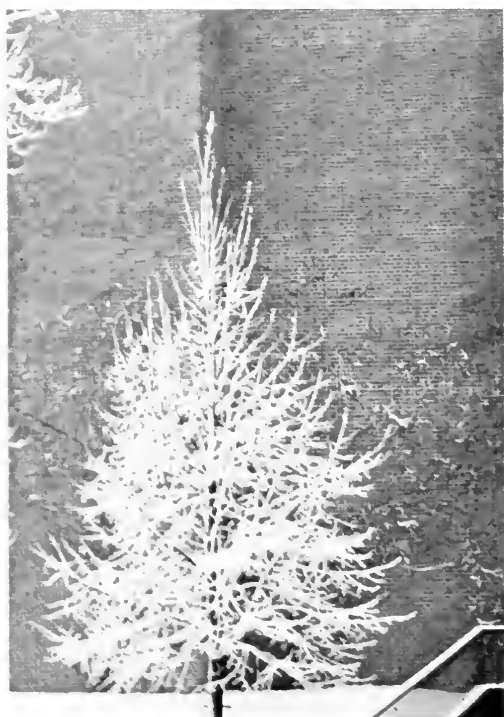

Throughout the concert, each member of the band was highlighted individually, and both Kris and Rita played solo sets of the music they are best known for.

In the final portion of the show, the couple sang together uniquely as husband and wife. Each contributed their own singular talent, and backed by an expert band, combined to be one of the best 'duo-groups' that Eastern has ever been fortunate enough to encounter.

Frequent Snowfalls Delight Students

Eastern and Central Kentucky got a better taste of winter than in past years. Winter crept upon the campus and quietly draped the ground with a white blanket. Campus surroundings acquired a different appearance as tree branches became frosted by the cold wind and ice. Students experienced the season's serenity while viewing the freshly fallen snow. After trudging through the cold and slush to attend classes, students took advantage of the snowfalls to engage in the enjoyable activities of snowball fights and the creation of snowmen.

Holiday Spirit Adorns Campus

Traditional events such as the performance of Handel's "Messiah" and the Hanging of the Greens in the Keen Johnson Student Union Building highlighted the '74 Christmas celebration. To accompany the University tree in front of Burnham Hall, students decorated trees in their dorms. The men of Commonwealth excelled by ornamenting a two-story pine tree inside their lobby.

Sometimes conflicting with finals study, Christmas activities captivated student interests. Several organizations spread the holiday spirit by caroling across campus. A party sponsored by men's and women's Interform the week before Christmas intensified enthusiasm. Students, saturated with the seasonal spirit, left for home to spend the holiday with their families.

New Semester Begins With Pre-Registering

Beginning with the usual bothersome task of registration, spring semester found transfer students taking advantage of orientation procedures and advisors' guiding abilities. Pre-registration during the first week of December received selective students of long lines and many waiting hours. Made available to freshmen with no more than one C at midterm and to upper-classmen with no more than one D at midterm, pre-registration guaranteed the securing of necessary courses and the deletion of registration hassles.

Partial and total dorm evacuations also accompanied the initiation of the new semester. Required to move due to an economy measure residents of Martin Hall were assigned to other dorms. Renovations of the Foster Music Building necessitated the relocation of some Keith and Case Hall dwellers, as parts of those halls were converted to office space.

AKA Sponsors 'Rhapsody of Black'

The second annual Miss Ebony Pageant, sponsored by the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, was held in Edwards Auditorium December 6. Miss Elaine Smith, a sophomore data processing major from Winchester who performed a monologue "Negro Mother" was chosen to reign as the 1975 Miss Ebony.

Serving as host and hostess for the "Rhapsody of Black" evening were James Tillman and Donna Black. Through the added backdrops and explicit decorations, the theme was intensified.

Placing as first runner-up in the pageant was Karen Luney from Irvington. Second runner-up was Cathy Hargrove from Louisville, and Sherri Beaumont also from Louisville captured the third title.

Former Miss America Hosts 1975 Pageant

Sponsored by the EKV Panhellenic Council with the theme of "Love is all Around," the Miss Eastern Pageant was a lively entertainment event of the spring semester. Miss America 1964, Donna Axum, served as mistress of ceremonies for the gala event. She provided interesting entertainment during the evening with singing and humorous stories of her life as Miss America. Rubel Caldwell and Marcia Park, Miss Richmond 1972, also provided several songs during the event.

Tensions mounted as the final votes were being tabulated. Miss Eastern 1974, Jean Hempfling Brown, made her final speech and walk down the runway in that capacity. Miss Janet Dawson, a junior from Philpot, was crowned the 1975 Miss Eastern Kentucky University. Janet presented a piano arrangement of "The Entertainer" as her talent. She was sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha Honorary. Along with her title, Ms. Dawson received a $300 scholarship, a silver bowl, and various gift certificates.

Debbie Monaghan, Orlando, Florida, of Kappa Delta sorority was chosen as first runner-up. Second runner-up was Judy Dunn, Lexington, sponsored by the Law Enforcement Honorary. Carol Cole, Lexington, sponsored by Theta Chi fraternity, was third runner-up, and Debra Elmore, Dayton, Ohio, of Chi Omega sorority was fourth runner-up.

Paulsen Presents History of Humor

Pat Paulsen, perhaps the biggest joke to run for the presidency, presented his new college lecture entitled "A Lecture In Humor" on Eastern's campus in the Fall.

Former presidential candidate, Pat Paulsen wended his way to fame with remarks such as: "Any boy can grow up to be president, or if he never grows up, vice-president" and "We can win the war on poverty by shooting 400 beggars a week."

Paulsen spoke in Brock Auditorium tracing the history of humor from prehistoric times to the comedy of the future. He utilized film in a multi-media show which proved for a hilarious evening.

Rowan Offers Advice to ECU Journalists

Carl T. Rowan, distinguished journalist and government official, presented a spring lecture on Eastern's campus.

Rowan, who has a weekly radio show in 40 cities, is a regular commentator on social and political events for radio and television stations of the Post-Newsweek Broadcasting. He is also a roving editor for Reader's Digest.

After spending 13 years as a correspondent with the Minneapolis Tribune, Rowan was able to discuss aspects of journalism as an authority. After his lecture, he held a seminar style interview with Eastern students of journalism.

Center Board Draws Cultural Performers

Presenting a wide variety of musical and theatrical entertainment, the Eastern Kentucky University Center Board brought many acts to campus. Concerts by both group and solo performers drew many students to Hiram Brock Auditorium. Fine Art groups such as the Continental Theatre Company, Mary Anthony Dance Theatre, and On the Isle Theater Company gave commendable performances.

Friends Enrich College Life

Fulfilled by classroom acquaintances and shared through enthusiasm of campus events, the simplicity and uniqueness of friendship played a vital role in uniting the varied groups of university inhabitants. Exhibited by a smile or a comforting word, it made the trying days bearable and the happy days more eventful. As an important component of college life, friends made through Greek and dorm life played a memorable role in the college environment. Lasting relationships were made to survive parting ways and varied futures.

Couples Enhance Campus Scenery

Couples were an ever present and never ending sight on Eastern's campus. Seen in and between classes and studying and relaxing together, they found mutual companions and established friendships. Whether it was just a common acquaintance, a study partner, or an emotional involvement, different types of lasting relationships were developed. Seen at various times of the day, couples seeking havens found refuge at numerous campus spots.

Students Encounter Spiritual Needs

During the school year many students found time to depart from the hectic pace of University life through self meditation and spiritual devotion. Whether seeking inward strength or simply some peace of mind, these students found a wide choice of places in which to conduct their quiet moments alone. The chapel of Meditation offered a contemplative atmosphere with its tranquil setting, and the ravine provided the peaceful natural beauty of outdoors. Students were able to take advantage of Baptist, Methodist, and Catholic student centers, and various religious organizations.

Wherever they chose to be, students made time for a chance to sort out yesterday's memories and put tomorrow in focus.

Spring Season Arrays Campus With New Birth

Arraying the campus in sunshine, spring was a welcome relief from the dark, dreary days of winter. The warm showers in April brought the blooming flowers and budding trees in May. The revived greenery created the necessary tasks of its upkeep as university workers were seen weeding, pruning, and mowing. Signaling the end of the second semester, spring was further symbolized by students anxiously awaiting summer vacation.

Spring Fever Reaches Epidemic Levels

Beginning the week before midterms, spring fever reached epidemic levels on Eastern's campus. Taking advantage of the warmer temperatures, carloads of students journeyed to the playground South for a week of sunbathing, swimming, and socializing. Overtures of spring fever prevailed after the students' return to campus. The latter part of the spring semester gave rise to outdoor activities. Soaking in the sun, afternoon naps in the ravine, and spring sports took priorities over studies.

Top: When the weather is warm and the sun is shining, stopping to chat with friends between classes is a common occurrence on Eastern's spring campus. ## Graduation Recognizes Individual Achievement

The graduation ceremonies symbolized the end of formal education for the Eastern senior. Sighs of relief, last good-byes to friends, and final tugs on graduation caps were nervous gestures of students hiding the natural anxieties of future plans and goals. Education did not abruptly end with the acquirement of a degree. Some graduates had hopes of achieving a higher level of education while others had waiting jobs and positions. The graduation address encouraged students to go forth from Eastern striving to learn more about life and the satisfactions, disappointments, and fulfillments it could bring.

Carroll Installed As Governor, Visits ECU

In December 1974, the Honorable Julian Morton Carroll became the Governor of the Commonwealth, when Governor Wendell H. Ford assumed a seat in the United States Senate. Governor Carroll, a native of Paducah, was former speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives, and was inaugurated as Kentucky's Lieutenant Governor on December 7, 1971. In this position he was a frequent visitor to the ECU campus.

In the fall, Governor Carroll was at Eastern to address a graduating class of 100 police officers who had completed a ten-week course of the Eastern-based Kentucky Law Enforcement Council.

Regents Serve As Policy-Making Board For EKU

The Eastern Board of Regents, the statutory governing and policy-making body of the University, this year awarded a new, four-year contract for President Martin and sanctioned a major academic reorganization which included the establishment of two new colleges and a vice presidency among its official actions.

In action effective with the 1974-75 academic year, the Board changed the status of the School of Law Enforcement to a College in March, the College of Allied Health and Nursing was created.

The new administrative position established was Vice President for Public Service and Special Programs, a position for which the institutional Self-Study for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools had cited the need in view of the University's range of special and public service-type programs.

Two new members were appointed to the Board by Governor Julian Carroll—Charles Combs of Richmond and Durham Howard of Pineville, who had served a previous term on the Board. Mr. Combs replaced his father, baseball Hall-of-Fame member Earle B. Combs who resigned due to health; and Howard succeeded William L. Wallace who died in December. The elder Mr. Combs had previously served as the first elected chairman of the Board.

Robert B. Begley, Richmond, and Gerald S. May, Stanford, were elected chairman and vice chairman of the Board, respectively, by their fellow regents. Mr. Begley had previously served as vice chairman.

The Board consists of eight members appointed to four-year terms by the Governor, one faculty regent elected to a three-year term and a student regent elected to a one-year term.

President Martin Tours People's Republic of China

A pair of unique events earmarked the 15th year of Dr. Robert R. Martin's tenure as the sixth president of Eastern Kentucky University. The occurrences, coming about a month apart, were the January meeting of the Board of Regents at which all 10 members of the Board made, seconded, and then unanimously passed a motion granting Dr. Martin a new four-year contract that extends through June, 1979; and the February announcement that he would be among a 22-member educational delegation to tour the People's Republic of China during April.

In response to his re-election, President Martin told the Board that he was looking forward to the years ahead for Eastern. "I wouldn't be worth a nickel as president of a school without challenges and opportunities," he remarked, "and we do have new challenges here. And with these challenges, we have new opportunities and, I believe, a fine atmosphere in which to meet them."

"The challenges to this institution are as great, or greater, than ever before," said Dr. Martin. "It's important that we continue to move forward and not sit back on our heels and rest on past accomplishments. In addition to the task of meeting constantly changing educational requirements, we've also the problems of recession, inflation, and others to contend with."

claims twenty-three years of close association with Eastern. He counted his four years as a student, four as chairman of the EKU Board of Regents, and his decade-and-a-half as president.

The April tour to China, which included visits to educational institutions in five cities, was sponsored by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU). Dr. Martin served as president of the 317-member AASCU in 1971-72, when initial plans for the tour were first considered as part of an intensified effort to expand the international and intercultural interests and experiences of state colleges and university faculty and students.

Locally, Dr. Martin saw the institution go through the second 10-year self-study of his Administration. The self-evaluation process was climaxed in the Fall with visitations from the two major accrediting bodies, The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and the National Association for the Accreditation of Teacher Education.

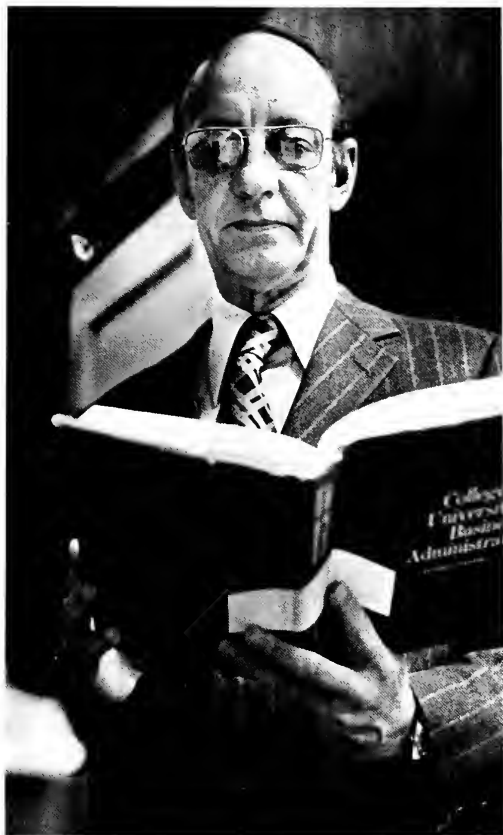

On the national scene, President Martin has served in various leadership roles for a number of years with AASCU, and testified on numerous occasions before Congress for higher education. He was reappointed this year to the eight-member Advisory Council on Developing Institutions by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Casper Weinberger.

Administrative Affairs Tightens EKU's Belt

Dr. J. C. Powell, the Vice President for Administration, exercised responsibility in administrative and fiscal affairs of the University. The emphasis of fiscal affairs during 1974-75 shifted from bond issues and construction to a more general administrative nature, which stressed anti-inflationary measures. Dr. Powell had responsibility for preparing the budget request for submission to the Council on Public Higher Education, the preparation of the internal budget of the University, supervision of the Internal Auditor, utilization of facilities of the University, and other administrative areas such as data processing and safety and security.

A Division of Budget and Planning was created and James Clark was appointed as director. This department was responsible for developing and implementing management information systems, and assisting in preparation of the internal budget and requests for state appropriations.

Tracy, the Director of Development, reviews a national funding proposal.

Academic Affairs Broadens Opportunities

Dr. John D. Rowlett, the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research, who also serves as Dean of the Faculties, was highly instrumental in the development of new academic programs designed to serve changing educational needs of the service region. He supervised the preparation of position specifications for instructional staff and administration personnel connected with instructional activities. Dr. Rowlett was also responsible for the preparation of the academic calendar, class schedules, textbook adoption, and the schedule of examinations.

Academic affairs completed institutional self-study, and evaluation which is made once every ten years. Mr. Evans D. Tracy was installed as the Director of Development. In this position he worked with agencies in Washington to secure University funds.

The Department of Television and Radio instituted an instructional college credit course in music appreciation, aired over the radio. Through the Division of Continuing Education, forty-six correspondence courses were offered to persons desiring educational advancement, but who found it impossible or impractical to attend regular campus classes.

Dr. John D. Rowlett, the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research, studies a recommendation concerning a staff promotion.

Student Affairs Emphasizes Dorm Activities

Dr. Thomas D. Myers, Vice President for Student Affairs, supervised expanded programs in dormitory activities and summer orientation, which high-lighted the broad scope of student-oriented programs and services.

In the area of counseling, the crisis "hot line", which was staffed entirely by volunteer student workers, continued to serve as a listening outlet for student frustrations. Extensive vocational training programs, offered by the Counseling Center, received national awards in recognition of service. Counselor Williams E. Johnson was named to act as minority liaison agent between students and the Administration.

The office of Ombudsman, created in 1969 to receive requests, concerns, and grievances of the student body, was held by Jack Callender, of the English department faculty.

Primary planning in the area of health services was directed toward the contemplated completion of the new health education and services building, scheduled for completion in 1976. Student health services have been located in the cramped quarters in the basement of Sullivan Hall for many years.

Much time, effort, and resources were devoted to the residence hall programs. Kelly Stanfield and David Wiles, directors of women's and men's residence hall programs, supervised activities for the students, which were educational, cultural, recreational, and social experiences.

Business Affairs Seeks To Fight Inflation

The implementation of cost-saving measures planned to maintain the business and logistical services of the University at a high level during inflationary times, occupied a large portion of the attention of Neal Donaldson, EKU's Vice President for Business Affairs.

Business affairs oversaw Eastern's divisions of accounting and budgetary control, buildings and grounds, purchasing and stores, the University Store, food services, institutional services, personnel services, University Farms, and the offices of the controller and bursar.

A major appointment within Business Affairs was that of Dr. John Shirley as manager of University Farms, a position created to coordinate the operation of Eastern's several agricultural enterprises.

Public Affairs Expands Services For Graduates

The concluding event of the Centennial Year celebration, expanded alumni and placement services and continued aggressiveness in student recruitment and public information activities all were highlights of the year for the Office of Public Affairs. Coordinating these communications and special programs was Vice President for Public Affairs, Donald R. Feltner.

The observance of the Centennial Year of Higher Education on the ECU campus ended September 22 with the Centennial Awards Luncheon at which 345 Eastern alumni were honored for excellence in teaching. The date marked the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Central University on the ECU campus and ended a year-long series of special events that dramatized higher education's history and paid tribute to outstanding graduates of Eastern and its predecessors.

The Division of Alumni Affairs expanded its services to graduates with the initiation of a program of overseas tours in cooperation with other Kentucky institutions, and informing alumni of the opportunities available to them, either as prospective employers or employees, through the Placement Service. The established alumni activities such as Homecoming, Alumni Day and a comprehensive publications program were continued as alumni rolls approached the 30,000 mark.

Stemming from recommendations from the institutional self-study prepared for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools came revisions within the Placement Service. Following a series of meetings with each of the college deans and department chairmen, steps were taken to further increase the services of the Division of Placement to meet the diverse needs of the graduates of each of the University's colleges.

University-School Relations continued to communicate the programs of the University to schools and prospective students through comprehensive in-school visitations and coordinated several on-campus events which attracted high school students to the campus. These included the annual Band Day, drama, music, speech, and debate festivals, and high school summer band camps.

The Division of Public Information in a diverse number of ways, communicated the University's programs and purposes to the varied publics. In addition to its regular programs in news and publications, considerable emphasis was placed on cost-saving techniques which resulted in the broadening of the scope of administrative and informational publications without increase in cost.

Donald R. Feltner, Vice President for Public Affairs, reviews data comparing the last five fall enrollments in planning the University's program of communicating with prospective students.

Central University College Strives For Improvement

Central University College, under the direction of Dean Clyde Lewis, had responsibility for students during the first two years of their four-year undergraduate program. In cooperation with the College of Arts and Sciences, CUC provided a general education program for all students. The academic advising of students during their first two years was under the supervision of CUC.

Changes in the college this year included a cut in required health credit hours, a modest expansion of the humanities faculty and department, and a new catalog in which each major was clearly laid out along with general study courses and requirements.

Projected areas of emphasis for Central University College were a desire for expanding the learning laboratory so that students can work at their own pace, an increase in various kinds of media available to students, and improved vocational and professional counseling.

Rise Continues In AA&T College's Enrollment

Supervised by Dean William Sexton, more than 2,400 students were enrolled in the College of Applied Arts and Technology. This represented an increase of over twelve percent above last year's figures.

Many new academic programs and special projects were implemented in the College of Applied Arts and Technology. Three different degrees were offered in Agriculture, over four new degrees opened in Industrial Education and Technology, expansion of the Dietetics Program was seen in Home Economics, and a three-year grant was provided for students in a cooperative nursing education program.

As of July, the School of Law Enforcement was elevated to academic college status and redesignated the College of Law Enforcement. Since its inception and implementation in 1965, the School of Law Enforcement was an administrative department of the College of Applied Arts and Technology. As such, it developed within this college from a single class of forty-seven students, during the spring semester of 1966, to its present status as a nationally recognized program which enrolled more than two thousand majors this year.

Nursing Plans For A Promising Future

Celebrating its tenth year, the Department of Nursing continued to experience an increase in student enrollment. Directed by Charlotte Denny, nursing offered a wide variety of medical programs of interest to the students of medicine.

In an effort to achieve career mobility, several courses were implemented for different programs. For example, a course of interpersonal relations in health care was required for a degree in both Medical Terminology and Transcription.

Nursing was granted approval to develop a new degree in a four year medical records program, and a special "two-on-two" program. The unique "two-on-two" arrangement allows a student to attend Eastern for two years and earn an Associate Degree. After taking an accrediting examination, a student may return for the junior and senior years to earn a Bachelor Degree.

The Department of Nursing eagerly looks forward to a future in the new Health Education and Services Building. Extended plans for the new facilities include a reading room, an independent study lab with twenty-six carrels, audiotutorial equipment, and lockers for the use of commuting students.

Ag Department Opens New Laboratory Farm

Fall marked the opening of study for the Department of Agriculture on the new 640-acre Meadowbrook Farm, near Waco. The laboratory farm, concerned primarily with beef cattle and forage programs, provided directed work experience and skilled training for a greater number of Eastern students than ever before.

Enrollment of women in Agriculture moved from ten to twenty-five percent of the total enrollment in the department. This high rate of increase was attributed to the excellent opportunities, and important positions, available for women in agricultural careers, especially in the fields of agri-business and ornamental horticulture.

A special two-year Associate Degree in Floriculture and Floristry was offered in Agriculture for the first time. In the late Spring a 30-hour conference of advanced floral design was held to provide basic training for interested students.

One of the major concerns of the Ag Department in the future will be the problems involved with food production, and how to technically train students to be efficient managers in the production of more food. Further emphasis will be placed on work and job experience. Greater attention will be given to career education and the preparation of students for successful job entry after the completion of college.

Home Economics Widens Student Opportunities

The Department of Home Economics, under the chairwoman'ship of Dr. Roberta B. Hill, emphasized many aspects of study. Baccalaureate Degrees and Associate of Art Degrees were offered in the fields of Child Development and the Family, General Home Economics, Education, Interior Design and Housing, Nutrition, Foods, Food Administration, Textiles, Clothing, and Fashion.

Home Economics experienced a revision of standard course offerings, and development of new course selections. A general Interior Design course for non-majors was introduced along with two courses in Community Nutrition, in which students actively participated and worked with citizens of the community.

In the near future, the Home Economics Department plans to change parts of general study to specialized study with some general aspects. The Department also feels that it is necessary to develop and offer graduate degrees and specialized areas of graduate work.

Department of Ind. Ed & Tech Continues Expansion

On the threshold of Eastern's second century, the Department of Industrial Education and Technology expanded its program by adding many two-year associate degree programs. These included programs in such fields as Computer Electronic Technology, Electrical Power Technology, Instrumentation Electronics Technology, and Wood Technology.

Under the direction of Dr. Clyde Craft, the department also expanded their four-year degree programs. New courses were offered, facilities opened, craft programs instituted, and fresh approaches to the teaching of technology put into effect. The recently renovated Fitzpatrick Building housed the departmental offices, classrooms, graphic arts laboratories, and five new electronics laboratories. This was the first full year of the building's utilization.

Looking toward the future, Dr. Craft pointed out that industrial technologists, with saleable skills, are in great demand, as are technologists in the field of education. The department continued to place emphasis on the production of a better, more prepared, Industrial Technology graduate of the future.

Law Enforcement Gains College Status

Effective in July, the School of Law Enforcement became established as a College of the University. Headed by Dean R. W. Posey, Eastern's College of Law Enforcement was the second largest college of this type in the nation. Over 2,000 were enrolled in various majors of the Law Enforcement field. Four Bachelor of Science Degrees, six Associate of Arts Degrees, and five Master of Science Degrees, were offered by the College. In addition, Eastern cooperated in a Joint Doctoral Program with three other institutions of higher education. These schools included the University of Kentucky, Michigan State University, and the University of Maryland. Also, for the first time the Department of Traffic Safety became a part of the College of Law Enforcement.

Plans for the future involved a new Bachelor of Science Degree in the field of criminalistics, a minor area of study opening in traffic safety, and a complete departmentalization of the college. This will involve a separation, into departments, of Corrections and Juvenile offerings, from the Police Administration and Criminalistics offerings.

The College of Law Enforcement will move into their new building in the fall. The huge complex houses lab facilities for criminalistics, photography, and driver's education. Aquatics training will be provided for in an indoor pool, as well as an outside lake. Sophisticated equipment in the areas of a driving range, and an indoor and outdoor firing range will be established.

New Degrees Instituted in Arts and Sciences

Dr. Frederic Ogden, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, overviewed broad changes in many departments. A four-year performing arts degree was instituted inter-departmentally with the Departments of Drama and Music and dance, and musical theatre. For the first time the College provided two Associate Degrees in the specialized areas of Biological Technology and Geological Engineering. A cultural program of Ibero-American Studies, which focused on South America, was offered cooperatively by the Foreign Languages, History, Geography, and Political Science Departments.

The Jane F. Campbell building was opened in the Spring of 1974 and in full operation by the Fall. This ultra-modern facility sheltered the rapidly expanding departments of the fine arts.

Renovations were undertaken on the old Cammack Building which plans to reopen in the Fall. It will contain the departments of Foreign Languages and Psychology with their respective laboratories. The Foster Music Building also underwent some corrective surgery and repairs, yet remained open for classes.

Future emphasis will be geared toward consolidating and strengthening programs. The College of Arts and Sciences also plans to continually re-evaluate ongoing programs in order to insure that their effectiveness and utility will not decrease.

Dr. Frederic D. Ogden, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, leaves his office in the Roark Building after a hard day at work.

Department Sponsors National Honorary

The Department of Anthropology, Sociology, and Social Work offered majors and minors in all three areas. In cooperation with the Department of Education a Master of Arts in Education was provided, with a social work, or a sociology emphasis.

Under the guidance of Dr. Richard F. Armstrong, the department gave course support to nursing and law enforcement degrees. The faculty expanded with the addition of four new members to the staff. Special activities for Anthropology, Sociology, and Social Work included sponsorship of the EKU chapter of their national honorary society, and the social work club.

In the future the Department plans to widen course offerings.

Biology Turns To The Environment

Under the leadership of Dr. Edwin A. Hess, the Biology Department offered degrees in teaching and non-teaching biology, environmental resources, fisheries management, wildlife management, medical technology, and microbiology. Expansion in biology was realized through the addition of a special two-year Medical Lab Technology program, and new faculty members to staff the lab.

Developing beyond the current self-study program, the ECU Biology Department has plans for establishing a joint doctoral program with the School of Biological Sciences at the University of Kentucky. In conjunction with the Geology and Geography Departments, the Department of Biology is concerned with the development of the Maywood environmental education center. This facility is located thirty-two miles southwest of Richmond, and will provide over 1,600 acres of land for ecological outdoor study and research.

Enrollment in Chemistry Explodes

The Department of Chemistry, under the supervision of Dr. Harry Smiley and accredited by the American Chemical Society, offered two undergraduate programs and two graduate programs. With the acquisition of additional equipment such as an ultraviolet, visible and near infrared spectrophotometer, Eastern's Chemistry Department expanded to new heights. Twelve full-time staff members, including a permanent woman faculty member, worked to meet each student's needs. The department acknowledged approximately 50 chemistry majors, not including thirteen graduate students from six foreign countries.

Looking toward the future, the possibility of a two year program was discussed. The large increase of chemistry majors at the undergraduate level was attributed to the rising interest in allied health fields. A continued increase in enrollment is anticipated.

Communications Acquires Facilities

The communications department, with Mr. James Harris as chairman, increased its staff with the addition of three faculty members. A new radio lab for broadcasting production and news, along with a working journalism laboratory, were also added to the department.

Now in its second full year as a department, communications looks to the future with hopes for practical production of communication in dynamic areas of academics. Plans are being studied to develop facilities for a film and television laboratory.

Speech and Drama Utilize Theatre

The Speech and Drama Department, supervised by Dr. Richard Benson, made full use of the facilities of the new Jane F. Campbell building. The unique Gifford Theatre, an important aspect of the Campbell building, exhibited its versatility through many innovations. The stage of the theatre was used in four different ways. These included caliper stage, thrust, proceneum, and arena. The 400 seat auditorium was equipped with an elaborate lighting system, as well as moving ceiling panels for improved acoustics.

A Bachelor of Fine Art Degree, a musical theatre and the performing arts, was offered cooperatively between the departments of drama and music. The possibility of a summer theatre program, for drama and musicals, is also being examined.

Jane F. Campbell Encompasses Art

Under the chairmanship of Dr. Daniel Shindlebower, the Art Department enjoyed its first full year in the Jane F. Campbell building. This new center of fine arts provided facilities for music, speech, and drama, as well as art. Expanded space for art included laboratories for sculpture, graphics, drawing, design, and a special sky-lighted area for painting. The Fred P. Giles Gallery offered beautiful layout possibilities for the exhibition of art work, including a major show Paul Sawier in February.

A resale store for art supplies was revived to enable students to purchase class material at lower cost.

Within the future, the Department of Art will endeavor to create Bachelor of Fine Art degrees in the areas of ceramics, metal crafts, and graphics. The department is considering implementing photography into the curriculum, and a commercial art program in the fields of advertising and packaging design.

Department Studies Career Possibilities

Directed by Dr. Kelly Thurman, the Department of English recently experienced an increase in faculty members. Re-evaluation was directed toward the curriculum and different kinds of courses were studied for program changes. This involved the organization of a special study committee to research the nature of an English major, and to explore the availability of careers in the English field outside of education and teaching.

In the Spring, a contemporary course in women writers was offered to students in all majors. The English Department also sponsored its annual three-week tour of England which covered the areas of London, Canterbury, the English countryside, the Lake District, Stratford, York, Oxford, Cambridge, and Stonehenge.

Dr. Joseph Schwendeman, head of the Geography Department, directed a complete updating and revision of all programs. Alterations in the department were substantial. The planning program was broadened and changed from Regional Planning to Planning and Development. Fields of research and study were explored in detail. In conjunction with the Geology Department various problems of pollution, in particular surface mining, land use, and pollution abatement methods were explored in depth. Future emphasis in geography will be directed toward research expansion and further study openings on the graduate level.

Expansion of the Department of Geology, under Dr. Donald Haney, involved the implementation of a special two-year degree in a geological engineering technical program. A Bachelor of Arts degree in Geology was introduced to become effective in August. The Geology Department hopes to continue to endeavor for improvement.

Subject Diversity Concerns Departments

The Department of History, supervised by Dr. George Robinson, offered a 30 hour major in history with or without a teaching certificate. Two new courses were designed for any student interested in history but not necessarily a major. Future predictions were geared toward high expectations of continuing quality.

Under the direction of Dr. James R. Miller, major improvements in the Department of Philosophy included the addition of a woman philosophy professor. New courses in Russian Philosophy, Philosophy of China and Japan, and Philosophy of Technology expanded worldwide coverage of Philosophy. Participating with other state universities, a trip to India was sponsored. Enrollment figures in philosophy classes reached an all time high.

Departments Look To The Future

Dr. Arthur Lloyd, the acting chairman of Political Science, managed the implementation of several courses, and two new faculty members. The government internship program in public administration was expanded to accomodate more students. In this special arrangement, students of political science were granted the opportunity of working in governmental situations in Frankfort. Students from EKV participated in the National Model United Nations in New York City. This program was the largest collegiate conference in the country. In the future, the Political Science Department hopes to place greater emphasis on political involvement.

Along with other additions in faculty, Dr. Russell Enzie became the new chairman of Eastern's Psychology Department. Students of psychology worked to earn Bachelor degrees in clinical psychology and school psychology. The major plans the future of psychology were centered around the move into the renovated Cammack Building. This facility will contain animal labs, faculty offices, clinical training rooms, and human experimentation labs.

Math and Physics

Examine Fundamentals

Dr. Bennie R. Lane, the head of the Mathematics Department, urged greater emphasis on fundamentals. Course studies in computer sciences offered exciting dimensions to the department. New equipment, such as a programabal calculator, helped develop greater student interest in the field of mathematics. Although the number of coeds majoring in mathematics declined, actual participation in courses offered increased. The State Section of the Mathematical Association of America held their annual meeting on Eastern's campus.

The Physics Department, headed by Dr. Ted George, offered a Bachelor of Science degree in both teaching and non-teaching fields. Graduate programs included a Master of Science in Physics and a Master of Arts in Education with special emphasis on Physics. Physics majors were given the opportunity to attend a seminar program, sponsoring specialized speakers on x-ray fluorescence spectrometry and the Mossbauer studies. For the future the department proposed a two-year technical training program.

Music Expansion Opens Broader Horizons

The Department of Music, headed by Dr. George Muns, expanded in various areas. Two faculty members were added, and a Master of Music degree was developed. Offered for the first time were Electronic Music Composition, Jazz Improvisation, and a workshop in Choral Music.

The Department sponsored many special activities. These included recitals by the Symphony Orchestra and Choral Ensemble. The annual production of Handel's "Messiah" was presented at Christmas. In the spring the musical "Oklahoma" was performed, in conjunction with the Drama Department.

The Foster Building was completely renovated. Besides general improvements, new equipment and a Theory Listening Lab were added to the building.

The Music Department's main objective for the future will be to further expand programs, adjusting them to student needs.

Languages Host International Day

The foreign language department, headed by Dr. Charles L. Nelson, offered undergraduate degrees in French, German, Latin, Russian, Spanish and Greek at the elementary level. A Master of Arts degree in French and Spanish was made available, as well as a Master of Arts degree in Education, with emphasis in French and Spanish.

Several language students participated in a study-travel program to Mexico during the May Inter-session. Traveling together under the leadership of a faculty member in the department, the students received three hours university credit in Spanish. Local high school students were introduced to foreign languages and countries by attending a special International Day. This lasted one day and included foreign plays, programs, music and food.

All languages plan to be housed in the renovated Cammack Building by Fall, 1975. Lab facilities and classrooms will be improved to enhance the students' study of foreign languages.

College of Education Evaluates Programs

Guided by its Dean, Dr. Dixon A. Barr, the College of Education, completed a self-study in preparation for visitation by a team from the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, its major endorsing group. Full-time faculty members for the College numbered some 160 persons. Many of whom were heavily involved in teaching special extended campus courses throughout the state, as education took a role in Eastern's widened services. Comprehensive workshops and conferences, for teachers and students, were held on Eastern's campus during the summer. And, in addition, complex evaluations of teacher education graduates were maintained by the college during the student's first year of job experience.

The federal 'Right-to-Read' project, with a branch in ECU's College of Education, worked on an elementary level in the Estill County School Systems. New course work in Education was inaugurated in the areas of education of the deaf and freshman laboratory experience.

As Dean of the College of Education, Dr. Dixon Barr maintains continual study and research in all fields of progressive education.

Departments Support Educational Practicum

Offering no major of it's own, the main purpose of the Department of Educational Foundations, supervised by Dr. William McKinney, was to support the other education departments by providing basic introductory classes for general principles of education. The primary emphasis for the department, was on the development of laboratory experiences through the introduction of a special course entitled Professional Laboratory. Designed to provide beginning students with an opportunity to work with children, 80 percent of the class time dealt with actual participation and only twenty percent was spent in the college classroom.

In an attempt to meet the needs of students, Dr. Lola Doane, head of the Department of Educational Psychology and Counseling, supervised the addition of a video-rover to enable students to see themselves in action. Teaching-learning theories were developed, in a new course, as well as a practicum in psychometry, and a certification for a school psychometrist. Also offered for the first time was the specialist degree in rehabilitation.

Projects Prepare For Tomorrow, Today

William A. Morris, the chairman of the Department of Elementary Education, encouraged regular and frequent attendance, on the part of his faculty, at conferences, conventions, and workshops, in order to remain in-tune with current aspects of teacher education and preparation. Students of elementary education had the opportunity to sharpen their teaching and inter-personal skills through video-taping experiences with children and fellow students.

Many senior elementary education majors participated in the Right-to-Read Project, spending much time working with children in the Estill County schools. This innovative program provided learning experiences by focusing on the children's language and cultural uniqueness. Trained faculty members studied the difficulties involved in understanding and teaching rural disadvantaged children, as well as multi-cultured children from urban locations.

Department Produces Quality Teachers

The Department of Secondary and Higher Education, under the guidance of Dr. Joe Wise, was equipped to prepare quality teachers. Video-tape equipment was added to the department as a very helpful study aid. This allowed students to hear and see themselves in action, as well as analyze their teaching procedures.

Looking ahead, the Department of Secondary and Higher Education plans to continue examining approaches for preparing teachers.

Programs Emphasize Deaf Education

Directed by Dr. Wietse de Hoop, the Department of Special Education and Rehabilitation witnessed a substantial increase in students. Greater emphasis than before was placed on the departmental graduate program and special attention was also directed toward the area of deaf education for the hearing impaired, the only program of such extent in the state. Through federal training grants, and the Louisville television WHAS Crusade, the department was allocated funds for future scholarship purposes.

Right: Mary Lou Roesel and Kim Davis utilize a mirror to correct areas of speech production. Below: Eastern junior Roberta Harbin evaluates hearing capabilities on audio-testing instrument.

Departments Focus On Health, Library

The Department of School and Public Health, directed by Dr. Herman S. Bush, was dedicated to the idea that an informed citizenry will make the proper decisions in health matters affecting individuals, families and communities. In the spring, the department hosted the third Kentucky Student Community Health meeting. A Master of Arts in Education was established in response to the demand for qualified educators in the allied health fields. An under-graduate course in habit forming substances and a graduate level seminar in contemporary health problems were developed to focus on prominent health issues of today. The department looked forward to a laboratory in the new health building.

Under the leadership of Juanita Phillips, the Department of Library Science trained students for careers in school librarianship. Media courses were offered by the department through continuing education. Accreditation for school librarianship was in a process of change, and the department of Library Science was working toward the initiation of a program to meet these requirements.

Physical Education Offers Opportunities

Under the chairmanship of Dr. Fred E. Darling, the Men's Physical Education department stressed student training for a variety of physical education related professions. Subject areas, in addition to secondary and elementary physical education teaching, included corrective therapy, recreation therapy, and athletic training. An expansion in the masters of education program was planned with the addition of athletic administration on a graduate level. This coed program will train individuals for positions such as, athletic directorships in schools and colleges, municipal sports arena management, and jobs associated with professional and other athletic clubs and teams.

The Women's Physical Education department, headed by Dr. Ann Uhler, opened many new fields of study. These included courses on the graduate level. EKU students participated with other athletes, from numerous colleges and universities in hosting the Regional Tournament for Women's Volleyball, and in sponsoring the annual Becky Boone Relays. These activities emphasized the growth of women's physical education programs. Due to greater opportunities the Women's Physical Education Department currently had 200 majors, and enjoyed increase in enrollment.

Parks and Recreation Sponsors Institute

Dr. James McChesney was made head of the Department of Recreation and Park Administration, after serving as acting chairman. The department was responsible for coordinating and developing an annual Park Maintenance Training Institute. The institute was held at Lake Barkley State Park Lodge on the topic of "Swimming Pool Maintenance". Planned to educate and re-educate park supervisors and lower level maintenance personnel, the training of the program was concentrated on practical application rather than strictly theory.

The number of undergraduate recreation and park administration majors increased by sixty-two students over a period of one year. Department faculty video taped several class projects and demonstrations, to be utilized as a learning situation for future class presentations.

New Dean Heads College Of Business

Dr. Howard Thompson this year became the new Dean of Eastern's College of Business. Heading this College, which houses the Departments of Accounting, Business Administration, Business Education and Office Administration, and Economics, Dean Thompson supervised many renovations.

Faculty members were added to the College of Business staff who provided fresh areas of expertise. In an effort to contribute to the professional growth of the business community, the College of Business instituted special programs with citizens of the area. Rewarding contacts and an exchange of information were made between businessmen and faculty. This arrangement was to achieve several goals. It provided practical input into textbook courses, reduced the gap thought to separate the student and the business establishment, and constructed long-term associations between the executive's firm and the College of Business.

Major emphasis for future development will be in three specific areas. Attempts will be made to recruit a high quality of students for business careers, curriculums will be revised to obtain quality programs, and further contacts will be made with businesses and industries to insure graduate placement and good job opportunities for Eastern Business majors.

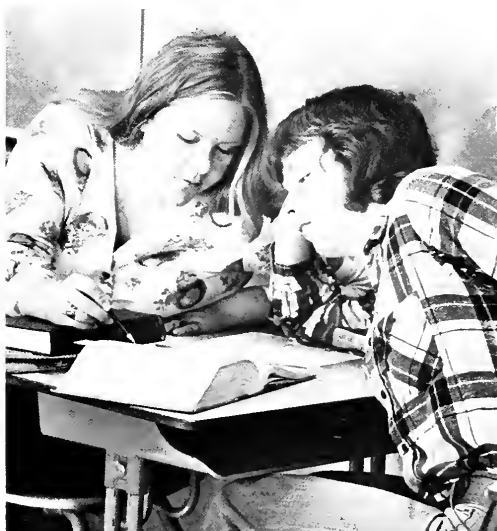

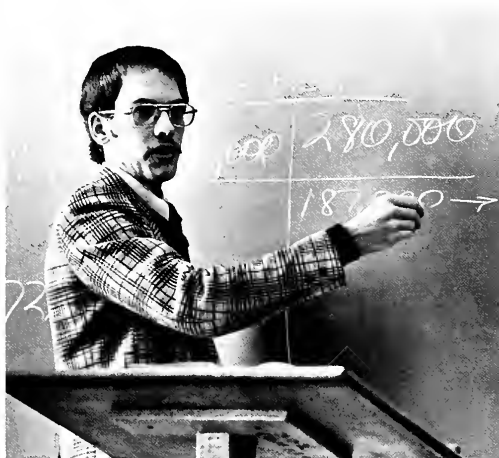

Dr. Howard Thompson works long and hard in his position as Dean of the College of Business.

Accounting Enjoys Growth

Headed by Claude Smith, the Accounting Department of the College of Business offered courses in principles of accounting, and other more advanced courses. Recently instituted programs included four two-year degrees and six four-year degrees with three options in accounting. These different programs covered a wide spectrum in the field of business accounting.

The Accounting Department continued to seek greater emphasis in more specialized and diversified uses of accounting techniques for the future. With the wide open job market in accounting, the major challenge of the Department lies in training and educating students to meet the demands of future careers.

Business Departments Improve Training

The departments of Business Administration under Warren Mullen, and Business Education and Office Administration, under the direction of Dr. Alfred Patrick, worked to offer students the best in business training. Four different Associate of Arts secretarial degrees were developed. These two-year programs covered the areas of Medical, Legal, Executive, and Administrative Office Services.

Planning for the future, the departments hope of establishing a simulation office where the student can get firsthand office experience. Seminars and workshops will be offered on a non-credit basis so that local citizens will have an opportunity to review various aspects of business.

Economics Has A Better Idea

Headed by Dr. Donald Shadoan, the Economics Department continued its endeavor to provide Eastern with a program designed to train the student to be flexible in adapting to the business world. The main goals of the department were to offer a balanced Liberal Arts education, and to give efficient pre-graduate training.

Proposals were made for the creation of an Economics Educational Center. This research center will contain a reserve area and calculator facilities. The Department of Economics also hoped to continue keeping the curriculum current, and the courses business oriented.

Right: International Economics is a topic of concern and study for many aware Eastern students. Below: Mr. Robert Losey discusses the principles of money and banking to an economics class.

Graduate School Appoints New Dean

Effective this year, Dr. Charles H. Gibson became the new Dean of Eastern's Graduate School. Under his supervision student enrollment figures reached a high plateau after rapid increases over the past five years. During 1974-75 the population of the EKU graduate program continued to rank as one of the largest in Kentucky.

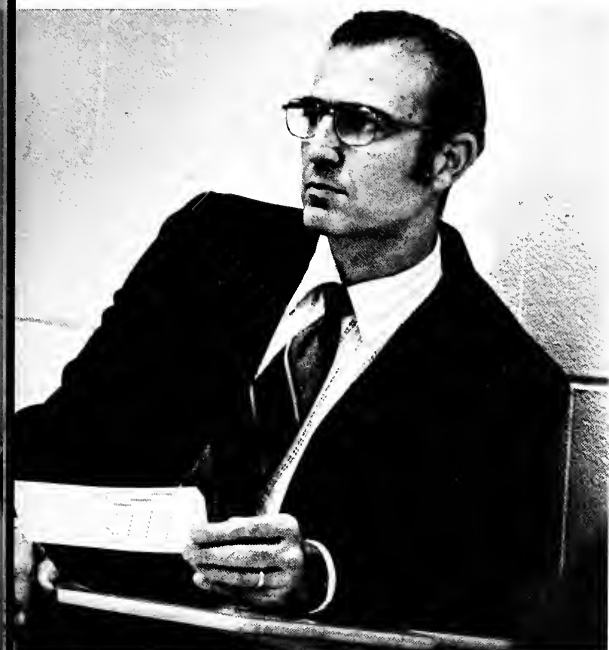

Graduate offerings came from a variety of fields including master degrees in arts, sciences, music, public or business administration, and various aspects of education. Specialist degrees were available in education and technology, as well as joint doctoral programs in education.

Many graduate assistantships, fellowships, and other forms of financial assistance, were awarded to well qualified candidates in most departments. These scholarships were granted as financial needs justified and they enabled the student to save on educational expenses.

The major emphasis of the 1974-75 academic year was directed toward the exploration and development of new areas for graduate programs, with special notice given to self-study. The future concerns of the graduate school were aimed toward the continuing improvement of graduate instruction.

Trying to figure out the proper way to wear the graduate collar seems to be a big problem for this Eastern student as he prepares to accept his degree.

Graduates Pursue Various Fields of Study

Many special areas of learning were concentrated upon by students of the graduate school. Thesis projects, research in the sciences, creative endeavors, and philosophic reasoning were sought out, engaged in, and achieved with great honor. Graduate students preparing for different professions occupied themselves with specific concerns and interests of their future vocations. For example, those students in-

involved in teaching received vital practical experience by serving as graduate assistants and conducting introductory courses in their major area.

Honoraries Demonstrate Fellowship And Service

Nineteen national honoraries served tremendously both ECU and the surrounding community this year. Each activity performed, either social or academic, demonstrated the fellowship and unified effort of the members.

Promoting interest in the field of journalism, Alpha Phi Gamma, an honorary for journalism majors, invited prominent newsmen and members of the field of journalism to speak to classes at ECU.

The Chapel of Meditation and the School of Hope benefited from donations raised through an auction of famous autographs. Plans were also made for donations to the Susan B. Harris scholarship fund. In April, members of Alpha Phi Gamma served as guides to the Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association Conference held on Eastern's campus.

Eastern's Oldest Honorary Encourages Leadership

Eastern's oldest honor society, Pi Omega Pi, developed scholarship and fostered high ethical standards among business education and professional students in related fields. The members sponsored the sale of stationery in order to send delegates to the National Convention in New Orleans in December, 1974.

As a national honorary, the aims of Pi Omega Pi were three fold: to encourage scholarship in business, to aid in civic betterment in colleges and universities, and to encourage and foster high standards in business and professional life.

As a National Police Science Honor Society, Alpha Phi Sigma, promoted professionalism through all its functions. The society's latest major endeavor was in the development of a totally new records system for the Richmond Police Department. Other activities included work for the rehabilitation of offenders in the local community and aid in an advisory capacity to the Explorers Post sponsored by the Bureau of Training.

This year Alpha Phi Sigma held its first National Convention in Omaha, Nebraska. Its purpose was to establish a new constitution and ways in which Alpha Phi Sigma can further promote professionalism in the area of police science.

Colonels Take Title And Reap Recognition

It was a banner-year for ECU Football and Coach Roy Kidd who was chosen by his fellow coaches as the man who turned in the outstanding coaching job of the season and named him the 1974 Coach of the Year in the OVC and nationally in District Four. This was the third Ohio Valley Conference championship team at Eastern for Coach Kidd, having won the title in 1967 and 1968. Kidd has completed eleven years as head coach here at Eastern and including this year's 8-2 mark has compiled a record of 71 wins, 36 losses, and 4 ties.

Colonels Have Record Breaking Year

The Colonels had an impressive array of players named to the OVC All-Conference team this year, indicative of the Colonel's outstanding year.

Players named to the All-OVC team were John Revere, Robyn Hatley, Joe Alvino, Everett Talbert, and Earl Cody, all to the offensive team. The defensive team members were Junior Hardin and Stan Roberts. Talbert was also first-team Associated Press and Kodak All-America.

Two team records were set. One of these was the most wins in one season (8). The other was the most yards rushed in one season, as the Colonels rushed 2,391 yards which broke the all-time rushing record that was set back in 1954.

Top OVC Scorers In Colonel Ranks

This year's team abounded with talent. Two of these outstanding players also ranked as the top two scorers in the OVC, Talbert and Cody.

Talbert led the OVC scoring with a total of 66 points, an average of 6.6 points per game. He was also chosen as the OVC Offensive Player of the Year, after five weekly selections. Added to his high scoring average was an average 147.8 yards per game rushing, boosted by nine 100 yard plus games. Talbert topped the season by being named first-team All-American.

Cody came in an impressive second in OVC scoring, all on kicking. He kicked a total of 52 points, a per game average of 5.8 points. Cody also tied three all-time school records this season. They were the most points kicked in a season, the most field goals in one game (3) and the longest field goal (43 yards).

Colonels Capture OVC Crown

Eastern senior quarterback Jeff McCarthy certainly knew how to close out his collegiate career.

The 6-5, 220-pound native of Cold Springs sparked two fourth quarter touchdown drives as the EKU colonels overcame a 14-7 deficit and went on to upend Morehead State Eagles, 21-14.

Not only did the win tie a school record for the most victories in one season, but the triumph, combined with Murray State's win over Western Kentucky, gave Eastern its first Ohio Valley Conference title since 1968. Eastern was 6-1 in the OVC, while Western and Murray State were 5-2.

"We set as our goals to win the conference championship and represent the university in the NCAA Division II playoffs," said coach Roy Kidd. "We, of course, realized one of those and were a little disappointed we couldn't attain both. However, it was a great year."

Below: The EKU fans are jubilant after they realize they are Number One in the OVC. Opposite Top: The 1974 OVC champs have an after game celebration in the locker room. Opposite Bottom: The pregame festivities prepare the fans for the crucial OVC championship.

Home OVC Contest Give Fans Excitement

A young relatively, inexperienced Eastern Kentucky University basketball team struggled the 1974-75 season to a final 7-18 record and a 3-11 OVC mark. Head coach Bob Mulcahy experimented with several different lineups during the season, before finally settling upon the starting five of two juniors: Carl Brown, who was leading scorer, and, top free throw shooter Jimmy Segar, and three freshmen: Mike Oliver, Darryl Davis, and Bill Dwane.

Despite a winless record on the road, the Colonels provided much excitement on their home court pulling from behind to beat Ohio Valley Conference rivals East Tennessee, Morehead, and Murray.

Individuals Highlight Team

Individual attainment was a highlight of Eastern Kentucky University's basketball team. Junior forward, Carl Brown, voted to the All-OVC pre-season team, became only the eleventh player in EKV basketball history to score over 1,000 points in a career. Forward Jimmy Segar led EKV and finished the season ranked in the top five in the conference free throw shooting percentages. Freshman Darryl Davis, playing aggressively, helped to spark the team. With these individuals united as a team the potential in coming years for an Ohio Valley Conference championship was demonstrated.

Eastern Freshmen Show Future Promise

Early in the basketball season, Coach Bob Mulcahy had to turn to his younger players. Three freshmen Mike Oliver, Darryl Davis, and Bill Dwane earned their way onto the Colonel's starting team.

Mike Oliver, a 6' 7" postman, finished second in the Ohio Valley Conference in rebounding with an average of 11.8 rebounds a game. Tyrone Jones, another freshman who saw much action this year, collected more than 100 assists, an average of more than 4 per game.

Junior Varsity Shows Potential

The Eastern Kentucky University junior varsity squad, under the direction of graduate assistant coach Paul Andrews, completed one of its most successful seasons in recent years, compiling a 9-5 record. After losing its season opener to Georgetown and Lindsey Wilson, the EKV JV team ran off five consecutive victories. Impressive wins for the Baby Colonels this past season were triumphs over Marshall, Transylvania and Lees Junior College.

Glenn Puckett, a sophomore center, led five double figure scorers for Eastern with his 12.7 average. Other twin digit scorers included sophomores Wayne Glenn (11.8), Don Morris (10.8), and Jeff Hloward (10.7). Freshman Dan Pugh led the team in free throw percentage, while Mike Holeman was the top rebounder with a 7.5 average. Howard topped Eastern field goal shooters.

Individual Performances Are Strong Team Assets

Under the coaching of Donald Combs the Eastern Eels finished the season with a 6-4 record, a mark not representative of the team performance, and several individuals with outstanding seasons.

Consistent performances were turned in this year by seniors Tom Javins and Wally Esser. Juniors Tom Linneweber and Terry Stoddard proved to be team assets as they helped pull the team past several opponents. Randy Holihan contributed much to the team and gave much promise for the coming season.

The 1974-75 team swam many of their meets under handicaps, including several members of the team who were injured throughout the season. Because of the injuries the Eels were forced to swim most of the season with only 10 swimmers.

The Eels record of consecutive Kentucky state championships was snapped at 12 by an improved University of Kentucky. EKU finished second.

Gymnasts Complete Successful Year

Under the direction of Coach Gerald Calkin, the Eastern Gymnasts completed another successful year. Despite the injury of co-captain Billy Sherrill the squad posted a winning season.

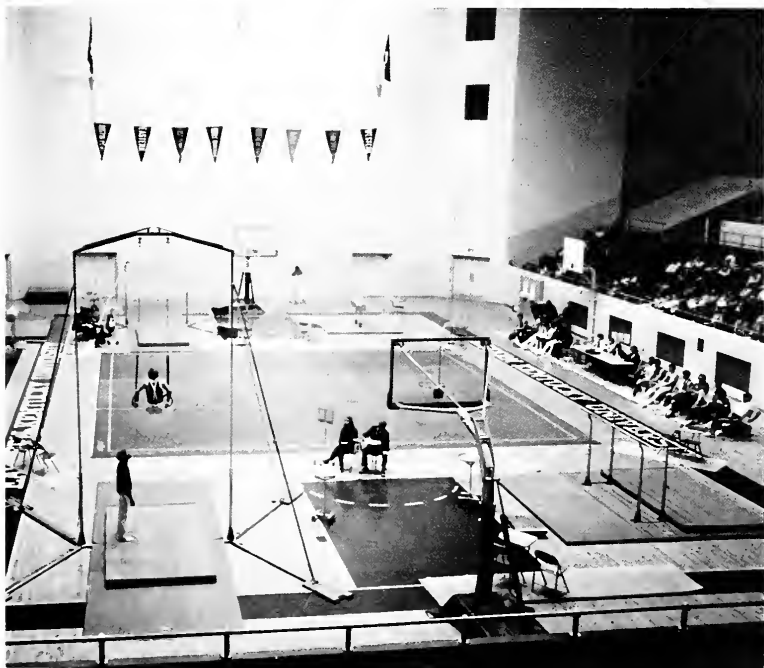

The team opened its home season February 8 boasting a 2-0 record, followed by impressive wins over the University of Kentucky and the University of Tennessee.

The future of the team was brightened because of the performances of freshmen Pat Bowles and Brian Morrett, and sophomore Tony Webber. The highlight of the season was when the team rolled to four victories on a road trip through North Carolina.

Grapplers Get Experience In Competition

Experiencing a season of rebuilding, the EKU grapplers posted a 5-10 record. With Freshmen composing fifty percent of the starting team, the season proved to be valuable through the experience gained in competition. The improvement of the team was led by the individual improvement of John O'Nan, Jeff Sole, Steve Howell and Gene Smith.

In Kentucky Intercollegiate Tournament competition, the Grapplers finished second, losing only to Morehead. With the return of this year's team and continued improvement, next year should provide a winning season.

Powerful Batting Aids Colonels In Even Year

Coach Jack Hisson's baseball Colonels finished the season with a 11-11 won-lost record. This year's EKU Colonels completed OVC play with an even record of 6 wins and 6 losses.

Eastern was led in batting by junior third baseman Jay Buffin with a .371 average and sophomore John Revere with a .373. Gordy Fisher, Ray Spenilla, and Dennis Brant added strength to the lineup by obtaining batting averages of over .300. The team overall average was higher than that of the previous year, due mainly to the powerful batting averages of these EKU Colonels.

Eastern's pitching staff also added greatly to the overall strength of this year's team. Two seniors, Howie Roesch and Ernie Pennington, led the squad.

Two Baseball Colonels Nominated All-Americans

Two Eastern Colonels, Howie Roesch and David Theiler, were nominated for All-American Honors. Roesch, a senior pitcher, was holder of an 18-13 career record at Eastern. Seven of these wins were against Ohio Valley Conference teams. He also had four shut outs and several low-run games to his credit.

Centerfielder Dave Theiler set ECU records in four categories: home runs (22), runs batted in (76), hits (132), and runs scored (95). Team captain and a four year starter, Theiler was a 1973 OVC centerfielder finishing last season with a .344 batting average.

Several season records were set by other members of the team. Record holders include Larry Myford, who is tied with Ray Spenilla with four triples. Spenilla topped the club in at bats (149), hits (48), home runs (5), and runs batted in (34). His RBI total sets a new school record.

Tennis Colonels Obtain Portable Indoor Surface

The newest addition to the ECU Tennis scene was the installment of sportface portable, roll-down carpet tennis surface. The portable surface was used in the basketball arena of Alumni Coliseum for practices and matches. The overall tennis program greatly improved with the installment of this carpet. More year-round practice aided the Colonels to obtain a 13-12 season record.

The tennis colonels were paced by the efforts of veterans Guenter Bergmann, Scott Barr, and Joe Shaheen. Barr defeated the University of Kentucky's Scott Smith; who was ranked thirteenth in the nation in the 18 and under division of the USLTA. This year's squad finished OVC competition in a sixth place tie with East Tennessee.

The squad was led to a winning season this year by Harriers Bill Sampson, Dan Matousch, Bob Moffett, John Mornini, Tommy Smith, Mark Yellin, and Delmer Howell.

The Eastern Harriers did an outstanding job at the Ohio Valley Conference meet, which was held in November. The team placed a strong fourth out of the field of OVC schools.

Eastern Thinclads Win First Home Invitational

Coach Art Harvey's track team made a sweep of its first invitational meet. Eastern was victorious in 12 of 17 events, including a double victory by junior Tyrone Harbut in the 100 yard- and the 220-yard-dashes. Sophomore Steve Flint set a new school record in the high jump with a jump of six-feet and eight-and-one-fourth inches. Frank Powers posted a new school record of 222.2 feet in javelin competition.

Outstanding performances were given this year by senior Jerry Young when he placed first in the Alumni Mile, and Pat Mitchell who tied the indoor pole vault record of 15 feet at the Mason-Dixon games in Louisville. Jerry Young, along with Tommy Smith, Bill Sampson, and Bob Moffett set a new four-mile relay record at Dogwood. They posted a time of 17:00.5.

Despite fierce competition. EKU finished a strong fourth in the OVC this year with 59½ points. Jeff Howard with a 6'5" high jump. Tommy Smith in the 880 yard-run, and Tony DeCandia in the shot put placed well in the OVC championship meet.

Presnell Leaves ECU After Eighteen Years

Finishing the 1974 season with a 7-2 dual meet won-lost record Eastern's golf team began the 1975 season under a new head coach, Jim Suttle from Dekalb, Illinois. Suttle replaced Glenn Presnell, who was OVC Coach of the Year. In eighteen years as golf coach at Eastern, Presnell compiled an impressive 170-77-8 record.

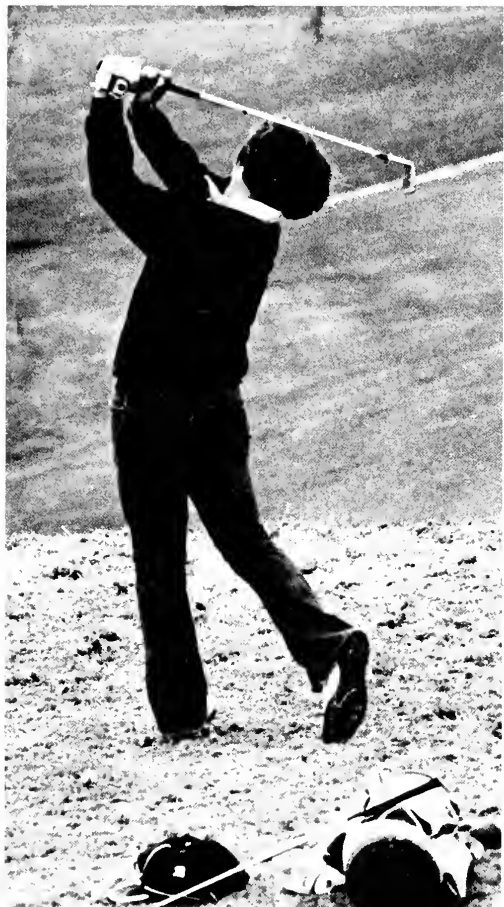

Victory in the third annual ECU Invitational and a third place finish in the 13-team field of the Tennessee Tech Invitational highlighted the season.

Eastern Golfers Roe Ivey and Dan Bogdan qualified for the prestigious National Amateur Golf Tournament which was held in Paramus, New Jersey.

The ROTC team returned home from the Tennessee Tech Golden Eagle Invitational with a first place trophy and the team also captured the first place position in the Kentucky Rifle League for the second consecutive year.

New team and individual school records were two of the highlights of the season. Sophomore Kevin Mitchell broke the school's high score record with a 286 at the Walsh Invitational Tournament. On the team were three all-around gymnasts, competing in the beam, floor, and vault events. They were Taryn Wells, Sherry Robertson, and Margaret Bausch. They faced some fierce competition this year doing well with an overall winning record. The team competed with such schools as Indiana University and Ohio State. CENTURY II

Association Representation System Revised

In an attempt to better represent the student body, the Student Association adopted a new election policy whereby students of each separate college elected a proportionate number of representatives to present the views of their respective colleges. This method of filling the fifty-five senate seats replaced the wide-open general election system of the past. Beginning work in early October, senators acted upon both academic and social issues confronting the campus community. Eastern's off-campus housing policy was reviewed.

Two issues of the year included the association's inquest into alleged student publication censorship and the senate's proposal of a student appreciation day for the university president.

Also, on the year's agenda, a proposal was made for the hiring of an Eastern attorney to represent students in court. A student government pamphlet was created to better inform students of the school's representative system. Services such as a student book exchange, a ride service, and a community paper recycling center were organized.

Wesley Team Tours Neighboring Area

Organized for the purpose of maintaining a Methodist ministry to the campus community, the Wesley Foundation provided students and faculty with a well-balanced program. Weekly events, such as the Wednesday night worship hour and Sunday morning's dialogue session combined with special activities to allow members to make new acquaintances.

Members worked at the Telford Community Center and with GROWTH, a community tutoring program, to aide the area's residents. The Deputation team, a group of twenty students whose goal was to relate the ministry of the Wesley Foundation, visited over thirty churches in several distant towns.

Baptist Youth Teams Lead Weekend Revivals

The Baptist Student Union sponsored Eastern students as summer missionaries throughout the world while also providing youth teams for weekend revivals in local churches. The choir traveled throughout the state presenting their religious musical "Share" at many churches. This musical stressed the importance of understanding and living a Christian life.

Open to anyone wishing to share in fellowship, the Baptist Student Union offered students an opportunity to become involved. Regular singing programs, Bible study and worship groups, and intramural competition, were just a few of the activities open to students. Friday night coffeehouses were very informative activities and provided fellowship for all. Members invited other university Baptist Student Unions to perform special musical programs in Richmond. Other members presented slide programs on their summer missionary work in such places as Alaska and Trinidad.

Women's Interdorm Sponsors Fifties Dance

The Women's Interdormity Board, composed of elected representatives and house council presidents from each dormitory, provided a medium of self government for women dormitory residents. Among their improvements of dormitory living was their involvement in having open house for women's halls during the year. These open houses occurred on weekends with the men's halls having open house on the alternating weekends.

The goal for the year was to sponsor a campus wide activity every month. In conjunction with the Men's Interdorm, they sponsored such campus wide events as the Halloween Party, Christmas Social and Card Party. The two boards also compiled an activities flyer which listed programs to be held in various dorms. These activities ranged from educational films and speakers to sewing and judo lessons.

Interdorm Sponsors Christmas Social

Men's Interdorm is committed to a policy of unifying individual residence halls and recommending changes in University policies and living conditions in residence halls. To achieve these undertakings, Men's Interdorm appointed a Program Committee. In conjunction with the Women's Interdorm, an activity flyer is published every two weeks containing the scheduled events to be held for the residence halls. A Halloween Party and Old Fashioned Christmas Social were jointly produced with Women's Interdorm. The Board also made recommendations for an open house policy for the dorms.

International Fellowship Portrayed At Dinner

Highlighting the year for the International Students was their annual International Dinner and Cultural Show. The dinner's menu consisted of foods representing ten foreign countries such as Persian salad olives, Japanese style chicken, and Indian khima and gulab-jumun. The Cultural Show included Chinese fold songs, Philippine dances and a parade of national costumes which featured unique wardrobes from seven countries.

The club also entertained students with a film festival showing films from six different countries. Money from this festival helped sponsor a girl in the Philippines and awarded a scholarship to a deserving foreign student.

Vet's Club Conducts Road Block for Charity

Furthering the interests and activities of veterans on Eastern's campus, the Veteran's Club was very active. The Vets sought greater benefits through the Veteran's Petition for which more than 2,000 signatures were collected. In the area of civic kindness, the club directed a road block for Muscular Dystrophy donations and held their annual Toys-for-Tots Dance. The year was not totally filled by work however, as they also participated in intramural sports and hosted their annual Spring Honors Banquet.

KDT's Support American Indian Child

As a service sorority, Kappa Delta Tau's primary purpose this year was to aid the community and EKV in every possible way.

This year the chapter supported an American Indian child and helped to send her through school. During Thanksgiving, they conducted a canned goods drive to aid the needy families in the Richmond area. KDT's also visited nursing homes in Richmond and traveled to the Cardinal Hill Hospital in Lexington and to visit hospitalized soldiers at Fort Knox. The sisters served as hostesses at banquets and worked at the polls for campus elections.

In recreational activities, the sorority participated in the annual Powder Puff football tournament and the Sigma Chi Derby. The sisters also worked with the Industrial Education and the Home Economics Clubs on their homecoming float.

Socially the KDT's held a Winter and Spring formal. Their annual Parents Day Banquet was held in the spring at which new officers were installed.

Circle K began the fall semester by serving as orientation guides to new freshmen and conducted campus tours. Their major project to aid Eastern and the Richmond community was an Eastern By-Pass Clean-Up Day. During Homecoming the club supervised the warehouses used for building floats and also conducted their annual peanut sale. A Bike-A-Thon to Murray was held in February from which the proceeds went to Multiple Sclerosis. A successful year ended with the annual Easter Egg Hunt for the children of Madison County.

Majorettes Entertain With Precision Twirling

Practicing daily with the Marching Maroons, the majorettes performed at all home football games. Dressed in jeans and flannel shirts, the group created a special routine for the salute to country music half-time show. For Homecoming, the majorettes thrilled the fans with the twirling and juggling of flaming batons while twisting to music from the Fifties.

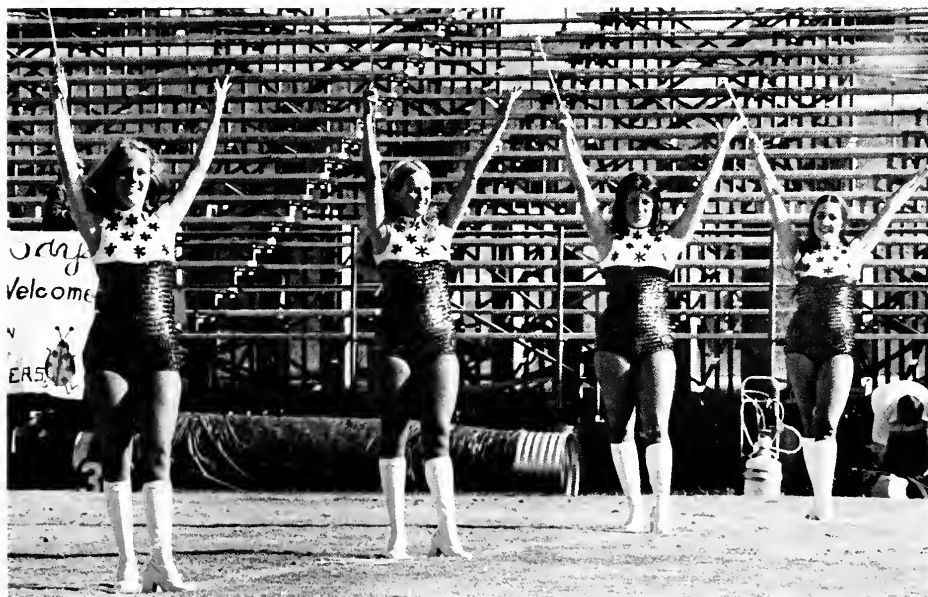

Four new members were chosen to accompany veterans Candy Embry and Jamie Langstaff on the field. To gain a position on the squad, the girls were required to perform a drill and twirling exhibition in addition to learning a group routine.

Males Add New Styles To Cheerleading

The football and basketball fans enthusiastically welcomed the return of male cheerleaders to the squad. Gary Taylor and Wayne Welch were chosen on the same competitive basis as the female members to complete the team of eleven cheerleaders. New cheers and routines were worked up by the squad and their captain Linda Noel. The cheerleaders led the students, especially fraternity and sorority members, in high spirited cheerleading during both athletic seasons. Their new and colorful hats and neatly tailored uniforms added the final touches to stress their powerful and emotional ability.

The Colonel, Eastern's official mascot, appeared on the sidelines after being in retirement for years. The return found the Colonel dressed in a new maroon suit and a very large head to emphasize the pride he has in his school.

Versatility Adds Strength To Marching Maroons

Certainly no college football game is complete without the color and pageantry of a marching band, and the performance of the Eastern Kentucky University Marching Maroons provided these qualities. This year's band was nearly one hundred-sixty strong and was directed by Robert Hartwell.

Versatility was one of the Maroons' strong points as they presented a different half-time performance at each Colonel home football game. The first football game featured their fourteenth annual Band Day at which high school bands from across the state performed with the Maroons. Other shows included a Country Music spectacular paying tribute to the people and songs that made country music famous and a salute to the "Fabulous 50's". The band performed a number of top hits of the rock n' roll era. To match this lively music, the band did a series of flashy dancestep routines and drills. At Homecoming, the band saluted former ECU bandmembers with a special band composed of the alumni. The Maroons not only performed at Hanger Field but also made the trip to Western to back the Colonels and played at the dedication of Fort Boonesborough.

Little Colonels Hold Spring Awards Banquet

Supporting athletic events and promoting school spirit, the Little Colonels Drill Team entertained with the Marching Maroons by providing precision drill and flashy dance-step routines at Eastern's home football games. In addition to their regular routine, they also presented special features at the country and 50's show. Decked in appropriate costumes of the 50's the Little Colonels pranced the twist, the frug and the Charleston to the music of the 50's. This year the squad traveled for the first time to back the Colonels as they journeyed to Western for the fierce football rivalry.

Money made by selling candy and football programs found the Little Colonels decked in new uniforms when basketball season arrived. To aid the press, the squad distributed statistics to the press table during basketball season. They also sponsored a girl from the squad in Homecoming and the Miss Eastern pageant both of which reached the top fifteen finalist. In the spring they honored various girls on the squad with their first awards banquet.

Catalina Club Presents Watershow

ACS Honors EKU Chemistry Club

Honors were bestowed upon the EKU Chemistry Club as they were chosen as one of the 42 Outstanding American Chemical Society Affiliate Chapters in the United States. The club earned this recognition for its superior work during the preceding year. Karen Mason, treasurer of the club, received the Outstanding Chemistry Student Award for this region given by ACS. Members arranged demonstrations and conducted tours at the annual Science, Math and Physics Test. However activities were not all work as club members displayed their athletic ability by organizing an intramural volleyball team.

Composed of students in medical associated fields, the Caduceus Club sponsored allied health speakers throughout the semester. Speakers such as Dr. Roger Lambson, Dean of Admissions at U.K. Medical School, Mr. Gerald Hill, Chairman of Committee of Admissions at U.K. Dental School, and Dr. Sue Fagan from the Madison County health center provided students with insight into needed qualifications and possible fields to pursue. Established to stimulate interest in biological topics and outdoor activities, the Biology Club provided an opportunity for students to interact with one another and their professors in settings other than the classroom. In conjunction with the Audubon Society, the club presented four specials where Audubon photographer biologists presented interesting and informative programs on wildlife around the world. Other activities included student and faculty outings, backpacking trips to Red River Gorge, and meeting with various guest speakers.

Participating in Oktoberfest which took place in Covington, Kentucky, the German Club enjoyed an American version of a traditional German celebration. Trips to see Fliegende Hollander by Richard Wagner and Die Dreigroschenoper by Brecht stimulated club interest. Parties were held with other language organizations. German foods provided by club members enticed students to the club's semi-annual banquets. A camping trip to Red River Gorge rounded out the years festivities.

Home Economics Club Attends Workshop

The purpose of the Home Economics Club was to offer those interested in home economics a place for development and social enjoyment, while providing beneficial programs that help broaden views and interests. Throughout the year, the group sponsored various speakers at their regular meetings. Members of the club also enjoyed a presentation on applying make-up given by a cosmetic consultant. In the fall members of the club attended the Kentucky Home Economics Association workshop at Spalding College in Louisville. # Organizations Help Improve Community

In February, the Interior Design Club attended a student design rally in High Point, North Carolina. Special projects of the members were entered in the competition there. As a design project, the club helped renovate the Telford Community Center by designing and painting the interior. In May, the annual Design Symposium was held which included speakers, exhibits and workshops.

The Food and Nutrition Club began the year by preparing and serving refreshments at the Home Economics Freshmen Tea. As the year progressed, they also helped with an interdepartmental Christmas party and held a chili supper to raise money. The club sponsored 18 students at the All American Regional Hospitality and Food Service Exposition in Cincinnati. Working in the community, the members promoted nutritional education to the Elderly Feeding Programs and Girl Scout troops.

Phi Beta Lambda Attends National Convention

Phi Beta Lambda, a national organization for persons in business and office programs, obtained its largest membership ever. Programs for the club included an organizational meeting with the Business Education and Office Administration Department and introduction of the faculty in those departments. Other events included guest speakers from IBM, a Thanksgiving Social, and student-teacher presentations. Educational tours included Proctor and Gamble and South Western Publishing Company in Cincinnati, Ohio.

To aid the National March of Dimes, the members set up road blocks and worked with the National Telethon. Members also hosted a faculty appreciation tea. In the spring, various members attended the Southern Regional PBL Leadership Conference and the State and National Conferences.

AMA Visits Advertising Agency

American Marketing Association was founded to foster scientific study in the field of marketing by bringing together the people from the professional world and students. Throughout the year guest speakers were invited from different areas of marketing and management. Field trips were taken each semester, one of which included a trip to Zimmer, McCluskey, and Lewis, an advertising agency in Louisville. In the spring, the AMA gave a $50 scholarship to a deserving junior majoring in the marketing field.

SNEA and ACE Discuss Career Aspects

To initiate and develop professional interest and attitudes among college students engaged in preparing for the teaching profession, the Student National Education Association presented many special projects such as a panel discussion on student teaching. Special films dealing with the history, ethics, and organization of the teaching profession preceded discussions at regular meetings.

Working with disadvantaged children and learning interdisciplinary approaches to elementary education were among the main focuses of the Association of Childhood Education this year. Different aspects of an education career were discussed at regular meetings. For a community service, group members presented a series of story-telling hours at the Richmond City Library.

Council Gains Knowledge Of Career Opportunities

Organized for the furthering of interest in the field of special education, the Student Council for Exceptional Children was able to achieve this purpose by a close association with special educable children. This organization provided a definite means by which the people with interests in working with exceptional children could obtain first hand information. This gave the students a good look at the future of their career and its opportunities. The chapter is growing in both membership and knowledge of their field. They attended both state and national conventions where several theories and useful techniques were presented by knowledgeable people on the subject of special education. The students did volunteer work around the Richmond community for the exceptional children. Fund raising drives were held with the proceeds going to sponsor parties and activities for the exceptional children.

Rookies And Student Nurses Serve Community

Assisting Eastern's security force at major campus events, the Rookies became the first all female group from the area of law enforcement. These uniformed ladies served as guides and patrols at all concerts and sporting events. The Rookies completed a successful first year of active operation under the direction of its founder and current president, Micki White. The group enjoyed several interesting field trips to various city police departments. A visit to the Kentucky State Crime Lab in Frankfort proved both knowledgeable and relevant to the member's career interests.

Relevant subjects in the area of nursing were the center of discussion in the weekly meetings of the Student Nurses Association. After returning from a trip to England for several weeks, Marcia Stanhope, faculty member, was invited to present a talk on the "Community Health Programs in England". Several of the members attended the Kentucky Association of Nursing Students Convention in Louisville.

Involvement spurred several students to help man the Red Cross Bloodmobile Center during its two visits to campus. In the spring, some of the members motored to the National Student Nurses Convention in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. While at this convention, many new ideas from around the country were picked up by the participating members.

Career Day Encourages Pursuit of LEN Areas

The Association of Law Enforcement sponsored the third annual Career Day in Criminal Justice last March. The various aspects of law enforcement were publicized to encourage recruitment in Criminal Justice. Many of the police agencies of Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, and Tennessee arrived on campus to recruit students during Career Day.

The Police Academy located in Frankfort attracted a lot of student attention during a tour this past year. The Academy provided the Association of Law Enforcement student with important information about the law enforcement profession and the rigors of direct law enforcement education.

Officials from the Blackburn Penal Institute in Lexington also showed interest in the association when they spoke to students about the difficulties and the rewards of the law enforcement profession.

Campus Organizations Sponsor Guest Speakers

In order to broaden their knowledge of the accounting profession, the members of the Accounting Club took field trips to accounting firms and other businesses. These journeys provided accounting majors with an in depth look at various possible accounting professions. The organization sponsored various guest speakers such as Certified Public Accountants. Tutoring sessions were conducted by club members to help beginning accounting students with their classes.

In its second year at Eastern, Lambda Sigma Omicron gave students interested in library science an opportunity to expand their knowledge. The members began the fall semester by inviting Dr. Allen, head of the Department of Library Science at UK, as their guest speaker. Throughout the year, members worked at the libraries at Model and Whitehall. As a social activity, the club held their second annual Christmas party. To bring a successful year to a close, Lambda Sigma Omicron held a book sale.

Aurora Marks Fortieth Year

AURORA 1975 marked the 14th publication of Eastern's literary magazine. It was first published in 1935 as a production of the Canterbury Club, a society of English majors and minors, under the title BELLES LETTRES. By 1968, as part of a push to modernize the magazine and increase campus appeal, BELLES LETTRES became independent and changed its name to AURORA.

Manuscripts of poetry, short stories, and creative essays, all written by EKU students, were accepted for publication. In addition to the literary selections, AURORA, for the first time in recent years, featured student artwork. While Dr. William Sutton, a professor of English and AURORA advisor, was on leave, Dr. Gordon Browning and Dr. Harry Brown served as acting supervisors for the student staff. Ms. Judy Wahlert, a sophomore art major from Greenville, North Carolina, worked as the art editor.

Progress Features Contemporary Topics

Under the editorship of Delma Francis, the Eastern Progress saw another year filled with hope, as well as anxiety. During the year, the Progress took stands on such topics as dorm visitations, alleged censorship and the new law which gives students the right to see their records, as well as providing the university community with campus and local news.

One extensive assignment was a poll taken on campus security. The poll indicated that it was the general consensus of the students that the security was doing a commendable job. News coverage focused on campus, as well as off. Students were kept well informed on matters regarding state and national legislation and insight was given into the Richmond Community, promoting harmony between the city and university. Full coverage was given to intercollegiate sports as well as intramural team sports. In January, a special sports supplement was released. The ECU Colonels were praised for their football accomplishments as they secured the Ohio Valley Conference Championship. The women's volleyball team gained fame and honor for its regional title. A new item was added to the Progress as the fine arts section presented a critique on current hits in a movie review each week. Fine arts was also the subject of an art supplement published first semester. The supplement contained a calendar furnishing dates and topics about the upcoming concerts and lectures to be sponsored by the University Center Board.

Campus Rebirth Evident As Century II Begins

Looking ahead to the advancements of the campus, the publication of the fifty-second Milestone recorded the birth of Century II. The staffers began the task of relating the events of the year through pictures and prose as they attended the fall workshop with staff members of Delmar Publishing Company. Following the workshop came the tedious but rewarding job of working with Osborne Studios during picture sales as money was earned to help finance the book. Top editors learned new techniques and advancements in yearbook journalism as they participated in the fiftieth Associated Collegiate Press Conference in Hollywood, Florida.

The finished product did not appear at once. It began as an idea that took much patience and countless hours of dedicated work. This hinged on the cooperation of the students for needed copy information, the photographers for the pictures and the staff members to combine the two to produce the 1975 Milestone.

Editor David Sullivan brought the year to an end as he presented the first copy of the Milestone to President Martin and awarded such honors as outstanding section editor, staff member, and student photographer at the annual awards banquet in the spring.

Photographic Staff Seeks Unity Of Effort

Relatively unknown to students is the tremendous task required of Eastern's photographic staff. The taking and processing of the innumerable amount of prints required for the Milestone and Eastern Progress is a monumental undertaking. The photographers combined both skill and patience in order to relate the activities that must be, pictorially captured to tell the story of life at Eastern Kentucky University.

Although the effective size of the photographic staff was diminished, this year increased demand of photographic illustration resulted in the creation of a family style group able to function in a manner similar to that of a single entity. The symbiotic relationship enabled the staff to develop a common style in which individuals involved displayed creative talents while working toward a common goal, that of producing quality publications in addition to other photographic projects.

Panhellenic was composed of two delegates from each of the eight recognized national sororities on campus. It was the central governing body for the sororities. From this group of delegates came the major decisions in organizing and carrying out the events of the year. Their accomplishments included the UNICEF Drive, the selling of candles for the School of Hope, and a Greek Letter Day, co-sponsored by IFC. As in past years, members participated in the hanging of the Greens at Christmas time. A campus wide dance Marathon to aid the Epilepsy Foundation was held in the Spring. They also correlated the beauty and simplicity of the Miss Eastern Pageant.

Panhellenic aided in sorority rush, both formal and informal. They provided for the registration of interested girls, grade checks, and the planning of rush parties.

IFC Revises Attendance Requirement

Resuming their duties as the organizing body for the fraternities, the Interfraternity Council improved its efficiency with a constitutional revision, requiring for the first time, the president or vice president of each fraternity at each IFC meeting.

Through the efforts of the council and in conjunction with the Panhellenic Council, a Greek council was formed consisting of all fraternity and sorority presidents. The council made significant achievements in the planning and coordinating of all Greek activities and in compiling information for the printing of a Greek activities calendar. A committee was assigned the task of revising the intramural point system in order to make the fraternity division of intramurals more competitive.

To add incentive, the IFC awarded their annual academic trophy for the Spring semester, which goes to the fraternity with the highest grade point average. The Interfraternity Council Academic Scholarship Award was also given to the individual fraternity member with the high GPA and service in extra curricular activities.

Alpha Delta Pi Active In Campus Events

The local ADPi chapter, Epsilon Phi, began the year by sponsoring their annual paddleball tournament. Proceeds collected were donated to the Humane Society in Lexington for the care of homeless animals. In other areas of community service, they joined in an all Greek effort to collect for UNICEF and in the sponsorship of an Indian child from Nevada.

The social activities included the SAE County Fair, the Beta Football Tournament, the DU Bike Race, and Phi Delta Theta's swim meet. Once again, the sisters captured the overall trophy on Sigma Chi Derby Day. Also included in the activities was a Parent's Day held in November. Parents were honored at both the home football game and a dinner afterwards. A mixer with the Pi Guys and a festive formal in the spring brought a memorable year to a finale.

Alpha Delta Pi, the first secret sorority for women, was founded May 15, 1851, at Wesleyan College in Macon, Georgia. Their feelings toward sisterhood are portrayed in their open motto, "We live for each other." Supporting the colors of azure and white, the sisters of Alpha Delta Pi have the lion as the symbol of their sorority and their flower is the woodland violet.

Alpha Gamma Delta Enjoys A Successful Year

The Alpha Gams began an eventful year by engaging in the Sigma Chi Derby Day. Athletic accomplishments included second place in the Alpha Delta Pi Paddleball Tournament and also second place in the Sigma Alpha Epsilon County Fair. Highlighting their activities, the Alpha Gams sponsored their annual softball tournament. The annual Parents Day was held in December which found the parents attending the Hanging of the Greens with the sorority. Throughout the year, Alpha Gamma Delta continued to raise money for Minimal Brain Dysfunction, their national altruistic project.

Alpha Gamma Delta was formally recognized at Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York, on May 30, 1904 and is thus entering its seventy-first year as a national sorority. The sorority claims as its symbol the squirrel, the colors are red, buff, and green and the flowers are red and yellow roses. Gamma Omicron, Eastern's chapter, holds two marks of distinction — being the 100th chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta and also Eastern's first international sorority.

AKA Hosts Parties For Richmond Youth

Along with planned parties once a month for the Richmond youth at the Race Street Community Center, for a service project, the Beta Nu Chapter of AKA also sponsored a student at the Richmond Model School by paying his tuition. The second annual Barbara Hunter Scholarship was awarded by the sisters in the fall. The award consisted of $100 given to a deserving Eastern student who acknowledged the need for financial aid.

The sisters of AKA received numerous trophies at their Regional conference held in Saint Louis, Missouri. They concluded the year by hosting their fifth annual Miss Ebony Pageant. Judged on the basis of poise, talent, self-expression and creativity, the winner advanced to compete in the Miss Eastern Pageant.

"By merit and culture" — this is the motto of the oldest black Greek-letter sorority, Alpha Kappa Alpha. ## Chi Omega Entertain Faculty With A Tea

The sisters of the Gamma Theta Chapter of Chi Omega began the year with life and spirit as they constructed a Homecoming float with the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Several annual events were held by the Chi O's. In October, each sister invited her favorite professor to a Faculty Tea. Chi Omega parents were honored at Parents Day in November. Alumnae Day, recognizing Chi Omega Alums, was held in January.

The sorority, joining with Phi Delta Theta Fraternity, held various money-making activities to sponsor a child overseas. For another civic kindness, they collected in Richmond for the National Arthritis Foundation. Socially, Chi Omega held their annual winter and spring formals and hosted a "Supressed Desire" costume party. In athletics, they competed in numerous Greek events. The sisters also engaged in the Sigma Chi Derby, Theta Chi Rally Week, and KA Old South.

Chi Omega, the first sorority established South of the Mason Dixon Line, was founded April 5, 1895, in Fayetteville, Arkansas. The sorority colors are cardinal and straw and the symbol is the owl.

As a service project, the Delta Sig's sponsored their annual Mr. Esquire Fashion Show to raise money for the Kidney Fund and Sickle Cell Anemia Chairities. The sisters also had a Christmas Party for the children of Saint Jude's Hospital. In the spring, a Scholarship Dance was held to finance a scholarship to be presented the following year. The scholarship was awarded to a deserving freshman girl on the basis of scholastic achievement in her previous school work and her financial need.

Promoting the ideals of scholarship, leadership, and service, Delta Sigma Theta was founded on January 13, 1913, at Howard University, Washington, D.C. The sorority colors are crimson and cream and the symbol is the elephant.

Thetas Win SAE County Fair

Athletic honors included second place in both the Beta Theta Pi football tournament and the Phi Delta Theta swim meet. They also captured first place in the SAE County Fair. In the area of community service, the Thetas continued to give support to the National Institute of Logopedics for Children with speech problems. They also made contributions to Muscular Dystrophy, and a donation to the Alumni Association. Willis Manor, in Richmond, was the scene of a Halloween Party given by the Thetas. The annual Parents' Weekend was held in November. Parents attended the football game and later enjoyed dinner at Boone Tavern. The winter formal was held at Bates Creek Country Club in Lexington and the year ended with the gala spring formal at the Round-towner in Cincinnati.

Founded January 27, 1870, at Asbury University in Greencastle Indiana, Kappa Alpha Theta became the first Greek letter sorority for women. Flying their symbol of the kite, they support the colors of black and gold. Eastern's Delta Upsilon Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta earned high academic honors among the sororities as they received the scholarship award for the third consecutive time.

KD's Hold Annual Parents Day Celebration

Eastern's chapter of Kappa Delta, Delta Omicron, was involved in many campus-wide activities during the year. They participated in the Sigma Chi Derby, SAE County Fair, Phi Delta Theta Swim-Meet, Theta Chi Volleyball Tournament, TKE Basketball Tournament and KA Old South.

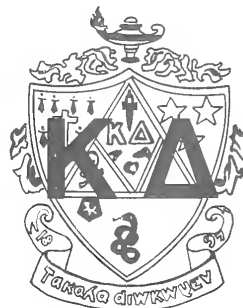

Homecoming found the sisters joining with the brothers of Beta Theta Pi in bringing Jack and the Beanstalk back to life in their float which portrayed the theme of "A Storybook Victory". On the weekend of November 16 and 17, the sisters welcomed parents at their second annual Parents' Day which featured open house on the sorority floor followed by dinner at Boone Tavern. The pledges became involved by sponsoring the annual KD Dating Game in December. Kappa Delta's service activities included the sale of Christmas Seals for their national philanthropy — the Crippled Children's Hospital in Richmond, Virginia. They also participated in a walkathon for a local charity, conducted a Valentine Party for the School of Hope and collected for Easter Seals in the spring.

Kappa Delta was founded at Longwood College in Farmville, Virginia, on October 23, 1897. They post the colors of emerald green and pearl white. Their flower is the white rose and the sorority symbol is the lady bug.

Alumnae Picnic Welcomes Phi Mu's Back To Campus

Eastern's Delta Chi Chapter was welcomed back to school in the fall by a picnic given by the local alumnae chapter. As the year progressed, Phi Mu entered the Sigma Chi Derby where they won first place in the float competition. They also took second place in the women's singles division of the Alpha Delta Pi Paddleball Tournament. They, likewise, participated in the SAE County Fair, the Beta Theta Pi Football, the TKE Basketball and Theta Chi Volleyball Tournaments.

This year's service projects included Trick or Treat for UNICEF and the All-Greek Candle Sale for the School of Hope. In the spring, Phi Mu also held its own major philanthropy project — the second annual swim-a-thon for Project HOPE.

Socially, Phi Mu parents were honored and entertained by the chapter's Washboard Band. The girls enjoyed a dance in Versailles and a winter formal at Greenbo State Park. The year was brought to a finale by the gala spring formal.

Phi Mu, the second oldest sorority in the United States, was founded March 4, 1852, on the Wesleyan College campus in Macon, Georgia. Sisterhood, one of the major guidelines of the sorority, is portrayed in their open motto, "Les Soeurs Fideles" — The Faithful Sisters.

ABT Sponsors Rocking Chair Marathon

Alpha Beta Tau, the youngest fraternity on campus, became officially recognized in November, 1972. The fraternity was established to promote the development of agriculture, technology, and for the betterment of young agriculturists.

In the fall, by fertilizing the soil, transplanting trees, and sowing grass, Alpha Beta Tau engaged in land-scaping projects throughout the underdeveloped parts of Madison County. They also took part in all-Greek service projects including the annual candle sale for the School of Hope. As a fund-raising project, they sponsored a Rocking Chair Marathon in which the participants attempted to break the existing world's record. ## Beta's Purchase Second Oldest Richmond Estate

Beta Theta Pi, founded August 7, 1839, at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, was the first national fraternity west of the Allegheny Mountains. Clad in the colors of pink and blue and marching behind their symbol of the dragon, they produced more Rhode Scholars and more Who's-Who's in America than any other fraternity.

The brothers of the Delta Xi Chapter at Eastern opened the fall semester by purchasing a spacious white mansion, the second oldest estate in Richmond, for their fraternity house. This year's civic projects for the Betas included a $1500 fund raising campaign for the Madison County and Kentucky Association for Retarded Children. The campaign included a bike cyclothon in which riders were sponsored by area merchants. During Homecoming, the Betas presented their version of Jack and the Beanstalk by building a float with the sisters of Kappa Delta. The brothers also held their annual Homecoming football game with the Beta Alumni. Athletic activities found the brothers sponsoring a football tournament for Eastern's fraternities and sororities in which they placed second. They also won the cross country event in the DU Bike Race, and participated in the TKE basketball and Phi Delta Theta softball tournaments. In the area of civic kindness, the fraternity donated its time by selling tickets to collect money for the Telford Community Center of Richmond. The brothers also manned a collection box in the Powell Grill for the Red Cross Fund Drive and participated in the candle sale for the School of Hope. Athletic involvements found the fraternity capturing second place in the flag football competition. They also participated in the Alpha Delta Pi paddleball. Tau Kappa Epsilon basketball, Theta Chi volleyball, Phi Delta Theta swim-meet, and the Alpha Gamma Delta softball tournaments. Social events for the year included a dance before the Morehead football game and their annual spring formal.

Since their founding in 1834 at Williams College, Williamstown, Massachusetts, members of Delta Upsilon have pledged to foster and encourage the purpose of higher education, promote friendship, diffuse liberal culture, advance justice and develop character. Highlighting the year, the KA Order held its annual Old South Week which featured a chugging contest, pig roast and the Girls Olympics. During Homecoming, the brothers held a reception and party in Danville. Lexington served as the site of their annual yuletide Christmas party. Numerous "keg" parties were also held throughout the year at their advisor's farm. The resounding boom of the "KA" cannon showed the Delta Mu Chapter's support for Eastern's gridiron undertakings.

In the area of community service, they aided the Madison County Historical Society in the renovating of the old city jail by making needed repairs, painting, and polishing rough spots brought about by age.

Possessing the qualities as exemplified in the life and character of General Robert E. Both groups volunteered as door-to-door collectors for parts of Richmond, Wallace Village, Sigma Chi's national charity received donations from various projects of the fraternity. The brothers participated in various athletic events which included the DU Bike Race Beta Theta Pi Football tournament.

The painted windows of sorority floors, spirit portrayed in songs sung by sororities at the Sigma Chi house, and the chase to obtain a derby from one of the brothers characterized the festivities of Sigma Chi Derby Week. These events pointed toward the games of Derby Day which for the first time were held at the Sigma Chi house instead of on campus. Other social activities included the Sweetheart Ball held in honor of the Sigma Chi Little Sister organization, the Little Sigma's, and the annual spring formal.

Sigma Nu's Initiate At National Headquarters

This year Sigma Nu participated in several events involving the inner-Greek system, the community, athletic spirit, and the entire campus. Members of Sigma Nu brought home honors at the SAE County Fair by winning the cider drinking contest. They also placed first in the DU Bike Race, and are now campus champs in the Intramural-Tug-of-War.

The brothers also initiated trips across the country for themselves and Eastern. In October, a trip to Lexington, Virginia. Sigma Nu's national headquarters, was the site of initiation of nine new brothers. The traditional 200-mile bike ride to Western Kentucky University took the brothers to cheer on the Colonels in the fall football battle. They also hosted the annual Power Puff Football Game, participated in a Senior Citizens Halloween Party, and the Hanging of the Greens.

Based on the "ideals of love, honor, and truth," Sigma Nu was founded at Virginia Military Institute on January 1, 1869. Supporting the fraternity colors of gold, black, and white, the initiation of Theta Theta Chapter of Sigma Nu saw the first local Greek social fraternity at Eastern Kentucky University become a member of a national organization.

Greeks Execute Many Facets Of Rush Week

Many expectations and opportunities awaited students as they arrived on campus for the first time or returned to continue their education. Among these numerous opportunities was found the advantage of Greek Life. The Greek System at Eastern consisted of thirteen fraternities and eight sororities.

Greek rush saw a sharp rise in the number of interested rushees. After several months of planning and hard work rush began as the Greeks entertained the new people taking a look at the Greek system. Skits, smokers, preference parties and the meeting of hundreds of new faces all characterized rush activities. Although rush functions were found to be crowded and hectic, the brothers and sisters enjoyed the excitement that came with the acceptance of bids to join. For after all was over, 133 women and 171 men had joined in the life of Greeks.

Right: Minnie and Mickey Mouse entertain Chi O rushees during festive sorority rush week. Below: Omega's add to rush activities with their unique Step-Ins. Bottom Right: Ellen Bach, Pam Clifford, and Rebekah Easterley entertain with the harmonizing tunes of yesteryear during an evening aboard the Kappa Delta Showboat.

Below: Clacking of wooden blocks, kazoots, and the humming sounds of the hand saw all go together to form the Phi Mu Wash Board Band as they join in rush week activities with an old fashion country jamboree.

Competitive Livelihood Enhances Greek Activities

The Annual Sigma Chi Derby capped off a week of events which included a final day of competitive activities. The sisters of several of the sororities competed in such events as Spirit Award, Zipper Stripper, and a search for sorority medallions in a trough of mud. Julie Holbrook of Kappa Delta reigned as Derby Queen and the KDT's won the Spirit Award. At the close of the day the sisters of ADPi were found capturing the overall award for activities.

Greeks also enjoyed another year of the SAE County Fair. The sororities and fraternities sponsored booths which included such events as egg throwing, pie throwing, and ring toss. The winning booth was a kissing booth sponsored by Chi Omega sorority. The fraternity and sorority winning the overall trophies for the fair were Theta Chi and Kappa Alpha Theta respectively.

For the sixth straight year Delta Upsilon held their Bike Race. Such events as free style, marathon, and triecycling proved to be very exasperating to the participants. Sigma Nu won the overall trophy.

Involvement Exemplifies Spirit Of The Greeks

Enjoying life to the fullest is one of the goals of a Greek organization. Spirit was one of the outlets at which this medium was obtained. The joining together of the brothers and sisters to support Eastern at athletic events certainly showed that the Greeks do have spirit. From the making of rock shakers to forming a tunnel for the football team at their final OVC game, Greeks portrayed to everyone their zest and pleasure of living and working together.

There are all kinds of ways to express to others the spirit one feels. Through the use of many facial expressions and aiding of the cheerleaders, Greeks added a lot to the school year. But not only by this means do Greeks stop at supporting Eastern, they enhance its image to the Richmond community by doing volunteer work, charity fund drives, and sponsoring of events for underprivileged children. That spirit is utilized in both leisure time and work to enjoy life as a Greek.

Top: AKA's generate school spirit as they cheer Eastern on to a victory.
Right: Beta's and KD's triumphantly raise their flags after Eastern's exhilarating win over Morehead.

Above: The anxieties and anticipation of football are shown on the face of these supporting students as Eastern makes another crucial move to gain yardage. Left: After the all night bike ride to carry the game ball to Bowling Green, Sigma Mu Mel Blevens gets close to the action as Eastern and Western match gridiron forces. Below: With noisemakers in hand, the TEKE's anxiously await the final moments of the victorious Morehead game which granted Eastern the O.V.C. Championship.

Top: Burger King salutes advancements of Eastern's Greeks by displaying fraternity and sorority paddles. Above: The artistic abilities of Pike's and Chi O's bring to life those storybook victories for Homecoming festivities. Right: Sigma Chi's make necessary preparations for Derby Day to be held at their house for the first time.

Individuals Satisfy Their Diverse Interests

The unity of Greeks was evident when called upon, but the diversity of each group came out when competition was encountered. The groups were very unique and different in their lifestyles and general attitudes. It seemed that it was the diversity of each group in which an independent could find a home within the Greek system. The contests, the parties, the work, and the memories of college days were always noticeable when rapping with the Greeks.

Experiences Form Life-Long Memories

Festivities, accidents, and sports all added to the happenings in the lives of the fraternities and sororities. The Crimson and Cream Ball topped off a festive Kappa Week. Sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi, this event included such things as step-ins, displays, and other social activities.

Many athletic events were sponsored by the Greeks throughout the year. From football to paddleball, the brothers and sisters, enjoyed the fun involved in each event. The moneys from these events were donated to charities. Intramural sports also provided a relief from the everyday hassels encountered in life.

Right: Intramural Flag Football is enjoyed by rivaling Greek members as this SAE quarterback finds himself in a sudden state of indecision.
Below: After a mid-morning tear gas attack TKE residents find airing the mattresses and deodorizing the house a time consuming ordeal.

Top: Observers view Kappa Alpha Psi as portrayed in a showroom during Kappa Week Activities. Right: Pikes understand the importance of good engine maintenance for their firetruck in anticipation of those surprise rally days. Above: TKE safety Frank Zuccala obstructs a DU goal attack in fierce intramural soccer competition.

Seniors Return For Final Year

Reminiscing the three years gone by and anticipating with great expectations the year to come, the 1974 Senior Class returned for their final and most important year. Mixed feelings of sadness and rejoice were felt among them as the realization of graduation became a reality.

Finally, on May 11, 1975, the Senior Class met as a unified body as they received their college diploma, the coveted symbol of four years endurance and determination. An unforeseen, but optimistic future awaited these young adults as they embarked upon the road of life.

A high-contrast, black and white photograph of a person, likely a scientist or researcher, wearing a lab coat and working with scientific equipment. The person is seen from the side, focused on their work. The image is heavily stylized with high contrast, creating a dramatic and somewhat abstract effect. The background is dark, and the person's face and lab coat are highlighted. The overall mood is one of intense concentration and scientific inquiry.

EASTERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY

UNDERCLASSES

CENTURY II

Juniors Anticipate Their Final Year

With only one year away from graduation, the junior class returned, determined to make their final years memorable. Class officers were elected in October and two new offices were added: those of student co-ordinators. Their job included the planning of activities for the class.

As spring came around the corner, the juniors turned their attentions to plans for a dance and making Easter baskets for Telford Community Center.

Sophomore Class Performs Services

Acting primarily as a service organization, the Sophomore Class worked toward the social needs of all the students. From dormitories, Brockton, and off-campus housing, students were chosen to serve on the board of student coordination. The board was formed to achieve fuller representation of the sophomore ideas in the overall student body output. These ideas were revealed in both social and service activities held by the class.

In the fall the class held several fund-raising projects, consisting of car washes and bake sales. The money from these projects was donated to needy foreign students at Christmastime. After several meetings, the class also held an enjoyable spring social.

Freshman Class Achieves Unity

FRESHMEN CLASS OFFICERS. Laura Todd, president; John Mouser, treasurer; Chris Stevens, secretary; Denise Cox, vice-president.

After a late fall election, the freshman class officers began leading the class of '78 through its four year development with regular class meetings. In an attempt to unite the class and be of service to the community, work in co-ordinating a talent show beneficial to the cancer crusade, and other money making projects were sponsored.

Many experiences were learned the first year of college. Between the homesickness and the struggle of becoming acquainted with campus life, numerous exciting moments developed which will always be cherished.

Editor's Note

You hold in your hands the completion of hours of writing and picture taking that to the editors tell the story of the first year of the second century of higher education at Eastern Kentucky University. The year began with big hopes and aspirations for each and everyone of us for we were the editors of the 1975 Milestone. Final plans were made as the year progressed and changes were made to these plans when we thought we could better present a certain topic. I was anxiously awaiting the completion of the book but for me this was to be awhile in coming. On Saturday night March 1, 1975 the final pages were turned in for me to proof. After this followed a small celebration among the staff present and then I was off to bed to sleep for fifteen hours as it was finally complete.

I accepted the position as editor knowing the headaches and tensions associated with yearbooks from my past year's experience. I knew this would be a challenge but little did I realize the extent of it. The late night work sessions brought to reality just how difficult meeting a deadline could be.

As I review the past year of the Milestone certain memories pop into focus: The ACP trip to Florida, the Christmas Party, the early morning breakfasts, and finding the right spot for the yearbook staff photo. I can't forget the rootbeer and shrimp or milk and pizza meals that my more daring staff people would order for dinner. Many lasting friendships were made as we worked in harmony at times and in discord at others.

As we waded through the good and bad ideas we came closer to our anticipated goal, the completion of the 1975 Milestone. A great big thank you goes to all my staff who devoted hours and hours of time and work to the book. I am sure that as they review the finished product they will feel the sacrifices they made were worthwhile. A special thank you to Janet Smith, Debbie Plummer and Sue Nelson for all their extra time and effort in doing the book.

My managing editor Allen Rader, had to be the greatest ever. His technical knowledge pulled us through when I was in doubt. He was there to boost my morale when I was ready to give up. John 'Moonman' Madras, my business manager, was the one who caught all my gripes as the year went by.

To me the pictures in the 1975 Milestone are the greatest ever. I extend a big thank you to Larry Bailey, University Photographer, and especially to Paul Lambert who stayed with us to those early morning hours printing pictures for us. Of course taking the pictures could not have been done without the staff of student photographers like Don Wallbaum, Rick Yeh, and Jeff Hayes.

A thank you for sports information and art designing certainly are in order for Karl Park and Don Rist. To the secretaries in the Office of Public Information I can't express my gratitude for their assistance and understanding. Knowing the right things to do and the planning of the banquets could not have been done without them.

Thank you goes to Vice President Donald Feltner for his interest in the Milestone. A very special thanks to our Advisor, Doug Whitloek, he was always around when I needed help and to answer my dumb questions. His encouragement and ideas helped make this book a reality.

To the Delmar Publishing Company I extend a hearty thank you. To Ray Kidd, Bob Anderson, Ralph Van Dyke, and Gary McCullough a special thanks for their patience and effort in the production of this book. Appreciation for photo services is in line for Osborne Photo Labs, Cincinnati, Ohio for their endeavors.

David Keith Sullivan
